shatter all previous two-performance attendance records.

A record crowd of 831 persons attended the opening performance of "Showboat: Then and Now" Monday night in the Washington C.H. Middle School auditorium.

Richard Patton, ticket sales chairman, said the crowd represented "the biggest Monday night we've ever had."

The previous record was established a year ago when 790 persons attended Monday night's performance.

The receptive audience completely filled the downstairs section of the Middle School auditorium and more than half of the balcony. Only the upper section of the balcony, which has a seating capacity for 200 persons, was empty for Monday night's show.

Monday night's brought with it difficulty in locating parking spaces and several showgoers were forced to park a great distance from the auditorium. Some persons were still being seated after the show had started.

Patton urged persons attending tonight's final perfromance to report to the auditorium early, especially if they are planning to buy tickets at the door. Over 50 tickets were sold at the door

Police officer's dog helps in capturing two suspects

Brown apprehended two breaking and entering suspects Monday night with a little help from his dog, Merco.
Capt. Brown was dispatched at 10:07

p.m. to the Red Rose Farm and Feed Supply Co., 926 Clinton Ave., after police officers received a breaking and entering report

Upon arrival, Brown spotted two men in the company office. Since there was no other police officer at the scene, Brown could not return to the police cruiser to request assistance. However, a doberman pinscher, which occasionally accompanies Brown on night patrols, was at the scene.

As one subject attempted to flee from the building, Brown sent Merco to the front door to prevent an escape. Brown then called to several employes of the Pennington Bakery, who were near the scene, to contact the police depart-

Brown and Merco were able to keep the suspects in the building until police officers and Fayette County sheriff's deputies arrived.

Taken into custody were Herbert Ray Thompson, 29, who claimed he resides on Maple Street, and Ronald Langley, 36, of 3478 Knight Road. Both suspects are being held in the city jail in lieu of bond and appearance before Judge John P. Case in Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Several minutes before the breaking and entering report was received at the police station, a report of a breaking and entering in progress at the Marting Manufacturing Co. was received.

Police officers and sheriff's deputies responded to the report at 809 Delaware St. A window on the south side of the building had been broken and the building entered.

Officers conducted a search of the building and found that the office area had been entered, but apparently nothing had been taken. The suspects apparently exited the building through the front door.

The police department also in vestigated a larceny report and a vandalism incident Monday.

A.B. Thomas of Huntington, W. Va., told police officers that someone stole a sheel cover from his car while it was parked at 526 Mulberry St. early Monday morning. The wheel cover was valued at $50.

Charles Fredman of the Midwest Iron and Metal Co., of Dayton, told police officers that someone damaged windows of a crane and a junk truck over the weekend. The two vehicles were parked at 1245 Gregg St.

OHIO WATER Service Co. crews are attempting to avoid in the future a situation which arose Monday as crews were preparing a water main Everitt Robbins, local water company manager, said crews were repairing a water main on Sycamore Street and it was necessary to discontinue service to several customers in the area. . . One of the customers was a woman who requires kidney machine treatment.

Kidney machines are dependent upon water for operation, but no harm was done, Robbins said, in the situation of the Sycamore Street woman.

To avoid similar instances in the future, water company officials are asking kidney machine patients to write the company and give their names, addresses and telephone numbers so that they can be notified in the future if water service is to be discontinued for any reason.

Patrol trooper hurt during city incident

An Ohio Highway Patrol trooper escaped serious injury early Tuesday 26-year-old when morning Washington C.H. man allegedly attempted to run him down with a pickup

Ohio Highway Patrol Trooper Lester R. Reel, 25, Wilmington, received a slight back sprain in the incident and he was treated at the Fayette County Memorial Hospital emergency room.

According to the Washington C.H. Police Department, Trooper Reel stopped a pickup truck in the 1200 block of Rawlings Street at 2:58 a.m. for a traffic violation.

After Reel placed the driver of the truck, Walter D. Aills Sr. of 1218 Rawlings St., in the patrol cruiser, the passenger in the truck, Walter D. Aills Jr., 26 of 1245 Rawlings St., reportedly became beligerant and jumped behind the wheel of the truck

Trooper Reel warned the younger Aills not to drive the truck, but he reportedly stepped on the accelerator and drove at Reel. The officer managed to jump out of the way and the truck struck a parked van owned by Michael Coder, 1254 Rawlings St.

After the collision, the truck stopped momentarily and Reel opened the driver's door attempting to shut off the vehicle. Then, Aills reportedly stepped on the accelerator dragging Reel along as the vehicle swung out of control and struck a vacant house at 1257 Rawlings Reel then reportedly subdued Aills with handcuffs as Washington C.H. Police Specialist Larry Hott arrived on the scene to provide assistance.

The younger Aills was charged with felonious assualt, driving while intoxicated, and reckless operation. His father was charged with driving while intoxicated.

The vacant house is reportedly owned by Sam Riley, 1245 Rawlings St. The truck reportedly ripped a six-by-four-foot hole in the house.

Commission appoints new welfare director

Frank Stanley, 3586 White Road, has been appointed as the new director of the Fayette County Welfare Department by the Fayette County Board of Commissioners.

The 34-year-old Stanley officially assumed the position Monday following the retirement of O.M. Riegel on Friday. Riegel, 740 Highland Ave., served as welfare director for 14 years, following the retirement of Beryl Cockerill in 1963.

Stanley has been a member of the county welfare department staff for seven yeas. He was a case worker for two years before serving as the social service supervisor for the past five

Stanley said he would use the first week of his appointment to become accustomed with the director's duties. Next week, he will attend a orientation workshop for new directors. The workshop, which will be held in Columbus, is sponsored by the office of staff development of the Ohio Welfare the Fayette County Commission on Department.

Stanley, presently, has 22 employes under his command. This total includes supervisors, case workers, and secretaries at the county office. So far, he has not named a replacement to fill the position he left to assume the directorship of the department.

Stanley will be supervising four divisions of the local welfare department. The divisions are income maintenance, social service, children's services, and food stamp services.

A 1960 graduate of Greenfield McClain High School, Stanley was employed as an assistant manager of merchandising for Bullock's Department Stores in Los Angeles, Calif., before returning to Ohio to join the Fayette County Welfare Department. He is also a veteran of the U.S. Navy.

Presently, Stanley serves on the Scioto-Paint Valley Mental Health Center board of trustees and the home health advisory council of the Fayette County Department of Health. He is also a member of the Fayette County 4-H Committee and he directs a local 4-H

Mrs. Putnam died at 1:50 a.m. Monday in the Ross County Medical Center, Chillicothe.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Charles, in 1958. She was a member of the Concord Chapter 520 of the Eastern Star and the Women's Society of the Frankfort United Presbyterian Church.

She is survived by a son, Dr. John Lyle Putnam, Pittsburgh, Pa., and three granddaughters, Susan Putnam of San Diego, Calif., Carolyn Putnam of North Long Branch, N.J., and Mrs. Joanne Gannon of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Friends may call from 6 to 9 p.m Wednesday at the Fisher Funeral Home in Frankfort. An Eastern Star Service will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the funeral home.

Those who wish may make memorial contributions in Mrs. Putnam's name to the Frankfort United Presbyterian Church.

RUSSELL CARSON - Services for Russell Carson, 57, of Bellville, were held at 11 a.m. Monday in the Morrow-Huffman Funeral Home, Washington C.H., with the Rev. Ronald Emptagah, of Mansfield, officiating.

Mr. Carson, a press operator for the White-Westinghouse Corp. who moved to the Mansfield area from Washington C.H. in 1946, died Friday

The flag of the World War II veteran was folded by Randy Aills and Keith McCoy of the JNROTC brigade at Washington Senior High School and presented to Mr. Carson's wife, Dorothy

Pallbearers for the burial in Washington Cemetery were John Fields, Brad and Michael Tolle, Rick Roberts, Phil Russell and Steve Begin, all members of the Washington Senior High School JNROTC unit. Taps were sounded by Beth Van Meter, a member of the Washington Senior High School

City clean-up

Tatman is being assisted in the doorto-door canvass of Washington C.H. residential areas by Vernon Stanforth, city field inspector trainee. Stanforth was hired recently through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program.

City officials have estimated that at least 200 Washington C.H. residents are presently in violation "neatness" ordinance

The ordinance reads:

'No person shall store, place or allow to remain, used building materials, motor vehicles in an inoperative condition, automobile parts, scrap metal, refuse or rubbish on any lot zoned residential within the corporate

Tatman said the unusually harsh winter caused some of the rubbish to build up on residential property. He pointed out that there were several days when refuse removal trucks could not operate and roads were closed to area landfills.

The city inspector said there are probably 100 junked vehicles parked on Washington C.H. or residential properties that should be removed or restored to operation.

According to a city code, a "motor vehicle in an inoperative condition" means any style or type of motordriven vehicle which is unable to move under its own power due to defective or

Vote reform compromise sought

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) Republican leaders unveiled amendments today aimed at reaching a compromise with majority Democrats on a sweeping election reform bill that would enable voters to register on election day.

Although the amendments would modify the intent of the Democrat-and labor-backed bill, they represent a major policy shift, easing long-standing Republican resistance to measures that substantially ease and simplify voting procedures

State senators met Monday night but only one bill was introduced in a brief floor session. Afterward the Finance Committee heard budget presentations from the offices of the attorney general and secretary of state.

Minority Whip Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, who will offer the election bill amendments in committee admitted Wednesday, readily Republicans were ready to accept the inevitability of wider, more accessible

The key GOP amendment would

eliminate the "instant registration" proposal, but mandate registration in all 88 Ohio counties and allow voters to enroll up to 21 days before an election, erasing the current 30-day deadline. Twenty-two Ohio counties have no

We are going to discourage voters by the long lines if you have people signing up on election day," Van Meter said. "We believe that everyone should register that can, but don't make it inconvenient.

Some Republicans feel large voter turnouts hurt their chances in an election, particularly if the votes come from minority areas.

The big get out the vote effort by Democrats was credited as a major factor in President Carter's Ohio victory last November, and Van Meter himself once blamed the Democratic turnout for Republican losses in the Republicans are also willing to accept extension from the present two years to four years, the time lapse allowed without voting before a person's registration is canceled. In the bill's present form the registration would be all but permanent, a step that Secretary of State Ted W. Brown fears would make it extremely difficult to keep records accurate.

Gov. James A. Rhodes vetoed a statewide registration bill last year because it called for four-year registratoon.

If all else fails VanMeter has two backup amendments prepared.

First, he would require the General Assembly to provide funds for added election day registration costs that he estimates at $2 million for additional personnel alone.

Secondly, when voters sign up on election day, Van Meter wants a sign conspicuously placed in the precinct, warning of the penalties for voting twice, or other election fraud.

'They'll (Democrats) say that's intimidating," Van Meter predicted.
"It's only intimidating if you plan to cast more than one ballot."

Senate may scrap

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you've already figured out how to spend that $50 tax rebate President Carter wants to give to most Americans, think again. There are increasing indications the Senate may scrap the rebate and substitute a permanent tax cut.

Senate debate on the tax proposals will begin in another week and may not be completed until after Congress returns in mid April from its Easter

And what members of Congress hear during trips home may be the decisive factor in determining whether a rebate or a permanent tax cut is in the bill that goes to the White House.

The fight over the rebate carries the potential for the most serious conflict to date between Carter and Congress, more serious than clashes over protocol and water projects that have marked the first 60 days of the Carter presidency.

Carter is pressing for the rebate as the way to give a quick boost to the economy. But congressional support for the rebate, even among Democrats, is, at best, lukewarm.

'I plan to vote for it," said Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., when asked his opinion of the rebate. "Enthusiastically?" he was asked.

"No," replied Byrd. But, he said, "It's the President's program. It's part of his economic stimulus program." On the Republican side, the votes are lined up, 38 to 0, against the rebate.

'There's an excellent chance we will defeat the rebate and substitute a permanent tax cut," said Minority Leader Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn.

Baker is certain of some support among the Democrats as well as of the vote of Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. of Virginia, an independent.

When the Senate Finance Committee voted to keep the Carter rebate in the bill rather than substitute a permanent tax cut, the tally followed party lines, with the 10 Democrats voting for the rebate and the 7 Republicans plus Harry Byrd opposing it.

Plane crash survivors set flight home for treatment

SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP) U.S. and Spanish officials began preparations today to fly survivors of history's worst aviation disaster back to the United States for treatment.

The U.S. Army Burn Center in San Antonio, Tex., said it was preparing to receive about 60 of the 70 survivors from the collision Sunday on the Santa Cruz airport runway of two Boeing 747 jumbo jets in which 575 persons were

Sixty-seven of the survivors and 321 of the dead were Americans, according to information from the airlines.

Meanwhile, Spanish, Dutch and American officials continued their investigations to determine the cause of the collision, which occurred as the Pan American and KLM jetliners were preparing to take off in fog from this Atlantic island.

Spanish authorities ruled out sabotage and claimed there had been no errors in control tower communications with the two planes.

Officials said they would inspect the 10,000-foot runway, which has been closed by wreckage and bad weather since the collision of the two planes, to determine if there was enough space clear for a U.S. Air Force C-130 tran-

the KLM plane to clear, they said. Gov. Antonio Oyarzabal said the planes collided nearly headon, and the key point" was whether the KLM pilot had permission to take off.

The Dutch pilot, Z. A. Veldhuisen van Zanten, was killed along with the other 248 persons reported aboard his plane. But KLM president Sergio Orlandini said the pilot was one of the airline's most experienced fliers and he doubted he would have begun his takeoff without clearance.

The Pan American pilot, Capt. Victor Grubbs of Centerport, N.Y., was among the 70 injured survivors from his plane, but no explanation from him of what happened was made public.

-In Ohio, a Public Utilities Commission order on Jan. 25, 1977, prohibited gas utility shutoffs until March 31. The ban on cutoffs ended March 20 for East Ohio Gas, which has sent out 50,000 delinquency letters.

-The Wisconsin Gas Co. Milwaukee has sent out 25,000 disconnect notices that will take effect April 22, the day after the state's moratorium on fuel cutoffs ends.

-The Potomac Electric Co., which supplies electricity to the District of Columbia, resumed cutoffs this week. Eight per cent of its accounts in February were delinquent, compared with 5 per cent in February, 1976.

Most utilities insist that customers will have a chance to straighten out their finances before they lose their poignant moment of Monday night's nationally-telecast awards show, Liv Ullmann opened the Best Actor envelope and read, "Peter Finch, for 'Network."

The crowd at the packed Music Center roared its approval, as Finch, who died of a heart attack Jan. 14, became the first actor ever to win the award posthumously.

Faye Dunaway won the best actress award for her blistering performance as the hard-driving "Network" the hard-driving executive who sacrificed all for suc-

The Oscar for the best picture went to "Rocky," which was made for a "cheap" $1 million and featured a thenunknown leading man - Sylvester Stallone. The story of a down-and-out fighter's shot at the heavyweight title also won a director's Oscar for John G. Avildsen and another for best film editing.

Some critics said the affair lacked some of the excitement of past Oscar nights, but that was in part by design. 'Exorcist' director William Freidkin, who produced this year's show, cut down on some of the onstage chit-chat and offstage glitter in an effort to produce a more dignified show.

What he got was a more dignified show that dragged in parts.

"It looks like we could have used some of that meaningless in-terchange," one Academy official mumbled in reference to Freidkin's move from two presenters to one.

Unlike last year, when "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Next" swept all the major categories, this year's homage by the film industry to itself lacked a big winner. "Network" and "All the President's Men," each with four statuettes, won the most. Stallone's "Rocky" took three Oscars.

"It was a classic case of timing, man and material," Stallone said in a backstage assessment of the film that at one time nobody wanted if he was to be part of the deal. Stallone, who wrote "Rocky,", concaled whatever disappointment he may have felt at losing in the Best Actor category.

Asked if it was true that he wrote the enormously popular film in three days, the 30-year-old actor replied, "I wrote it in two days, but I didn't want to seem loke a prodigy." Snappy work for a man who'd never seen a fight until he was 29.

Jason Robards, the actor who brought perfection to Eugene O'Neill material on stage, won an Oscar for his portrayal in "All The President's Men" of Ben Bradlee, the Washington Post's executive editor. It was Robards' first Oscar nomination.

Beatrice Straight, who lost husband William Holden to Faye Dunaway in "Network," was named best supporting actress. Miss Straight, who spent years on Broadway and did a stint in the quickly folded television show "Beacon Hill," won the Academy's honor on the basis of only two brief scenes in the film.

"I was stunned," the American-born, English-educated actress backstage, "very stunned. I must have looked like an idiot up there.

'Network" also won an Oscar for Paddy Chayevsky, who wrote the original screenplay. Despite this year's attempt at cutting what Friedkin had termed the 'tackiness' of previous Oscar shows, there were some touching moments. There were tears aplenty when, in accepting the best actor award for Finch, Paddy Chayevsky stepped to the microphone and said, "There's only one person who should accept this Mrs. Peter Finch.' Amid a standing ovation, Finch's widow, Eletha, walked to the stage. With tears in her eyes she relayed a message she said her husband had wanted to give to the Academy "He said, 'Darling, if I win I want to say thanks to my fellow actors who have given me encouragement through for sending me the right vibes."

So, I'm going to stick it there."
"Evergreen," Barbra Streisand's love song to Kris Kristofferson in "A Star is Born," won an Oscar for Miss Streisand, who wrote the music, and Paul Williams, who wrote the lyrics. Leonard Rosenman won an Oscar for his scoring adaptation of "Bound For Glory," while Jerry Goldsmith's score William Goldman's screen adaptation of Robert Woodward and Carl Bernstein's "All The President's Men' won honors for best screenplay adapted from another medium.

Stocks make early gains

Chrysle Cities Coca C

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices turned upward today, bidding to end the slide of the past eight sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose about 3 points in early trading, and gainers took a 2-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The upswing was attributed to technical forces within the market. Analysts said traders were doing some buying on the theory that the market was likely to find support with the Dow at the bottom end of the range in which it has fluctuated for the past year.

Pentagon to review Viet-era discharges

WASHINGTON (AP) — On orders of the President, the Pentagon will consider upgrading undesirable and general discharges for 432,530 Vietnam-era servicemen. Among them is Jack Carter, eldest son of the commander-in-chief.

The Defense Department announced Monday that Carter had approved its plans to review in "the spirit of forgiveness and compassion" discharges given for desertion, drug abuse and other causes between Aug. 4, 1964, and March 28, 1973. The announcement marked the

Sound election reforms

There are two ideal preconditions for representative rule in our democratic society. One is that the greatest possible number of those eligible a vote shall cast a ballot. The other is that each vote shall carry maximum weight at the polls.

The two chief elements in the election reform package submitted by the administration are aimed at bringing the nation closer to these ideals. The White House proposes amending the Constitution to substitute direct popular election of the chief executive for the present electoral college system. It proposes also that Congress enact a universal registration law whereby eligible citizens could register even on election day in national elections.

These are desirable changes. The electoral college poses dangers which the nation has more than once escaped by the skin of its teeth; on three occasions this system installed as president the candidate who had lost in the popular vote. This almost occurred for the fourth time last November. Though the Carter popular margin was 1.7 million votes, a small shift in a couple of states would have altered the outcome. Direct popular election also is preferable because, unlike the electoral college, it would give each vote its full effect.

Universal registration is sound in principle. Permitting voters to register on election day would be an acceptable way of achieving this, or an any rate making it much more likely than at present. Experience in the four states which now allow election-day registration suggests that voter fraud - especially since tough penalties figure in the administration plan - would not be a problem.

Two other aspects of the White House election reform proposals also merit support. The heavy special-interest funding of congressional candidates in the 1976 elections reemphasized the advantages of public financing. Liberalizing of the outmoded Hatch Act to allow partisan political activity by federal employes is long overdue. These changes, like direct presidential election and some form of universal registration, would improve the functioning of the electoral system.

Fashion design and interior decorating also may appeal to

"Myrtle... fella out here wants my opinion on something!"

- until further reading revealed that the Dr. believed "repression is the price we pay for civiliaztion.' What Tom Wolfe has done in his sparkling, often savage satire - his writing is a cross between George Orwell and Evelyn Waugh — is explain why, over the past decade, I have often felt like a historical monument awaiting certification by a commission. He baptizes this era the "Me Decade," and in a series of essays on varying topics develops the hypothesis that the architects of American culture opted for pure, unadulterated narcisism, the cult of ego-worship.

The ideal person thus became one who "let it all hang out," who reverted to the natural, uninhibited creature idealized by Jean Jacques Rousseau and other devotees of the "noble savage." (Only in the wake of Charles Manson and the Altamont rock brawl did it begin to dawn on some of this crew that all savages were not noble.) In the universities, scabrous antiintellectual behavior was justified by Rousseau's maxim, "My will is independent of my senses," characters who never read Rousseau.

Wolfe appreciates but does not sufficiently emphasize the extent to which this cult of inspired impulse was also a racket. The marvelous vignette which provides his convoluted title portrays one of the racketeers at work figuring out how many anti-American books he will have to write to maintain his flat in New York, house on Martha's Vineyard, kids in private schools and elaborate entertainment. This rip-off operation was particularly visible in colleges and universities. One example comes to mind. In 1970 a student in political theory, perhaps 19 years old, casually referred to Aristotle as a "real, heavy, you know, man, (expletive deleted) thinker." I was startled; not because I hadn't heard the word before, but because I knew this seemingly illiterate young man had done honors work at a good, ritzy private school. So I tried something: He was congratulated on presenting the class with an unknown word, one we could all now add to our vocabularies

The place broke up. Later he came to see me, obviously baffled: Didn't I know employing this formulation provided "authenticity"? I suggested that whatever authenticity it might provide would occur in an examination of Aristotle's sex life, not his political theory. He was shocked! "I didn't mean it that way." he said. "It's just street language which Professor X has shown in his book is the most effective form of communication." In short, the kid was an innocent; Professor X an intellectual crook. As anyone with military service knows, that word is repeated to the point of uselessness; it has no communicative value.

You realize, naturally, that what I am doing here is demonstrating my repression, my refusal to come to terms with the existential John Roche. You are right-and I am prepared to take the strain. The existential John Roche in 1970 would have gone to work on a faculty meeting with a chair leg and would now be the librarian in some slammer! But thanks, Tom Wolfe: Your sugeon's touch removed a wart from my psyche. I'm repressed and proud of it: There's a great deal to be said for pulling down the shades.

Carter energy plan not too painful?

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — When — and if — President Carter's energy program becomes law, it will be felt right down to brother Billy's Amoco station in Plains But it is more likely to be a twinge than a pain.

There probably will be smaller automobiles, less gasoline to go into them and a higher federal tax on every

Natural gas prices will go up substantially, and there are indications that they will be accompanied by some form of excess profits tax, to make sure that producers don't pocket the proceeds instead of using some of the money to search for new supplies. Using a system of tax incentives, loans and perhaps federal instructions tacked onto local building codes, Washington will seek to insulate the nation's homes and offices, old and new. Homeowners and landlords are going to have to pay for it.

As rapidly as possible, the government will end the use of natural gas to generate electricity, pressing and possibly compelling conversion of those power plants to coal.

This will involve bending some clean air and other environmental standards

although there won't be a wholesale retreat on that front.

There will be mandatory constraints on the use of energy, Carter has said, and while he did not enumerate the contraints, it is in that compulsion that he anticipates political trouble.

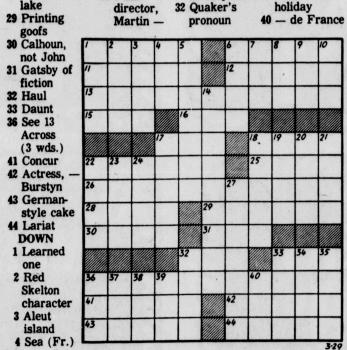

Carter said long ago that he was prepared to take the political risk, tell the nation what had to be done, and make it stick. The telling begins on April 20, before a joint session of Congress, when Carter delivers his energy policy message.

He says it will "substantially change the lifestyle of the American people.' Carter has outlined some major features of his energy policy, as candidate and as President. Unless he has major urprises to present next month, it doesn't look all that painful.

It will mean higher prices, but that's nothing new. Prices that would have been unthinkable five years ago are posted on every gas pump in the country.

This is the third of nine articles on care of the home and its furnishings. We suggest clipping out the article for future reference.

TLCFOR: SMOOTH SURFACE FLOORS

Today's smooth surface flooring designs are as varied as nature and man's creativity can make them. New materials, new styles, and a wide range of colors, patterns and textures are being introduced on our markets each year. With new technology, has come flooring with new procedures and products for maintenance. Unfortunately, even today no smooth surface floor covering is maintenance free. All types require some attention.

What are smooth surface floors and how do you care for them?

Smooth surface floors are divided into three categories: Resilient, hard, and wood or cork. Resilient flooring includes linoleum, vinyl, vinyl asbestos, asphalt tile, and rubber tile. Self-polishing, water-base products are generally used for the care of resilient flooring. Some common brands are Aero, Bruce, Future, Glo-Coat, Klear, Pronto and Super Bravo. Solvent-base buffing waxes can be used on resilient flooring, except some asphalt or rubber tile, and may be preferred by owners of electric polishers. Some common brands are Beautiflor, and Paste Wax. Be sure to try any solvent-based products first in an inconspicuous area before using on white or very light flooring since it may mask the true color of the floor. Always read the label and follow directions carefully when using any floor care product.

Hard flooring includes marble, terrazzo, ceramic tile, slate, terra cotta, bluestone, and brick. Selfpolishing, water-base floor products can be used on these floorings and will produce a shiny finish. A solvent-base buffing wax gives a satiny luster and is particularly recommended for the darker color stone floors. This type of wax would be an obvious choice when a floor polisher is available for buffing.

Wood and Cork. The richly patterned oak heads the list of hard or open-grain woods. Close-grain woods used for floors are maple, birch, douglas fir and yellow pine. Cork is another natural flooring. It's subtle texture and rich wood tone makes it an attractive material for flooring. Both wood and cork are porous and absorptive and should be given a protective coating, called a sealer to provide resistance to wear and spills. Most frequently used sealers are varnich, shellac, lacquer or penetrating sealer. Solvent-base waxes are recommended for these floors. You may choose from the buffing kind such as Beautiflor and Paste or the self polishing like Bruce Clean and Wax, Bruce One Step, One Step by Bissell, and Klear Wood Floor Wax. What is a wax, finish, polish?

A was refers to a protective floor care product made with natural waxes. synthetic waxes and-or a blend of both. They may also contain polymeric type resins. A finish refers to the durable protective floor film made primarily from synthetic ingredients such as vinyl or acrylic polymers. A polish is a protective film applied to floors that provides some amount of gloss. It can be either a wax or finish.

What is the difference in water-base products and solvent-base products? Water-based products are those in which water is the carrier for the tiny particles of wax and-or polymers that provide the shine and protective film for floors. They are formulated to withstand the stress of heavy traffic and detergent washings. Since they are water-base they are not recommended for wood or cork floors.

Solvent-base products contain rich natural waxes along with a solvent, usually naphtha. It acts as a cleaning agent to loosen soil and to soften and remove the previous coat of solventbase wax as the new coat is applied. There is no wax build-up problem and floors should never need to be stripped. Solvent-base products are available in paste or liquids. They can be buffing waxes or self polishing. The buffing must be polished by hand or with an electric polisher. All solvent-base products are recommended for the care of wood and cork floors. As was stated earlier, the solvent-base buffing waxes may also be used on resilient and hard flooring.

Is it necessary to remove water-base self-polishing wax occasionally from

The frequency of wax removal is an individual decision and depends on several factors such as number of coats of polish applied, nature of cleaning between polishing, and the amount of traffic.

There are several commercial wax removers to choose from or you can use a solution of 1 cup ammonia, 1/4 cup powdered floor cleaner such as Spic and Span, or Soilax added to each 1/2 gallon cool water. You may be wondering why cool water - the ammonia fumes will not be released as quickly as with hot water. Ammonia tends to evaporate, so it may be necessary to add more to the wax removing solution when ammonia and powdered floor cleaner are used.

Apply the wax remover to a small area of the floor (no more than 3'x3' portion). Let stand a few minutes and rub with stiff brush, steel wool or plastic or nylon scouring pads. Scrubbing with a sponge mop alone will not provide enough abrasion to lift the softened wax. Take up the cleaner and dissolved wax immediately with a cloth or sponge, rinse well, let dry. A second application of cleaner may be necessary to strip the floor completely. The floor will appear uniformly dull when all the wax has been removed. When the tenire floor is stripped, rinse and dry. Then apply a thin coat of your

How does the care of no-wax flooring differ from other types of resilient flooring?

Instead of adding a shine with a wax or polish you keep the floor bright by cleaning it often. It is important to protect the surface from unusual abrasion, such as gritty dirt being ground into the surface or furniture being moved across the floor. This means sweeping or vacuuming often. You will want to place a throw rug or mat at outdoor entrances to reduce the amount tracked in. A caution - the use of mats with rubber backing is generally not recommended inside since they can stain the floor. On a regular basis, as needed, the no-wax floor should be thoroughly cleaned to remove any build-up of dirt or film. You may choose one of the synthetic general-purpose detergents recommended for floors, diluted with water as directed on the label. Soap-based products are not recommended since they leave a dulling film. You may choose to apply the detergent solution with a sponge mop, pressing hard enough to get into any indentations in the surface structure. Rinse thoroughly with clean, warm water, being sure not to leave any dirty water in the indentations. For stubborn dirt, use a nylon cleaning pad. Steel wool or scouring cleansers are generally not recommended on the no-wax floorings. Will the no-wax flooring ever need polishing?

Tests have shown that even these nowax floor benefit from the added protection of a floor polish. Normal foot traffic will reduce the gloss of the surface in time. Floor finishes are available from retailers who sell nowax flooring which can be applied to touch up the shine.

Let's protect the flooring from chairs and other furniture. Where chairs or other furniture are being moved continually over the surface, take the precaution of adding floor protectors to the furniture legs. Also exercise caution when moving heavy objects such as a refrigerator or range to avoid damage. Use a scrap of carpet or other slider beneath moved item. This caution applies to all smooth surface flooring not just the no-wax types.

What about the maintenance of emossed resilient flooring?

Dirt and wax can accumulate in the embossing and require extra effort to get it out. A suggestion — do not pour cleaner or wax directly on the floor since the excess collects in the embossing. Instead, pour the cleaning solution or wax onto a sponge mop, or dip the mop into the cleaner or wax and wring out the excess.

What about removing stains and marks from resilient flooring?

The procedure you use will depend on the particular flooring you have. Generally, rubber heel marks and most food stains can be removed by rubbing with a cloth or applicator and floor cleaner. Rinse. Let dry and apply new polish. Steel wool or harsh abrasive cleaners are generally not recommended, especially on the no-wax

How to remove chewing gum, candle wax and tar without damaging resilient floors?

is easiest to remove these materials when they are hard. An ice cube in a plastic bag, placed on the area will hasten setting. Then scrape up excess with a dull-edged tool. Except on floors that are not resistant to solvent, apply a household solvent (mineral spirits or naphtha) with a cloth or very fine steel wool and rub clean. Wipe dry with a clean cloth and repolish the area if necessary

For asphalt and rubber tile floors that are not solvent resistant, clean them by rubbing with very fine steel wool dipped in a detergent solution. Rinse, let dry and apply polish. What can be done with pitted, rough asphalt and rubber tile?

This is usually caused by the use of harsh cleaners or solvents. If pitting is not too deep, use steel wool to smooth out the roughened surface. Wash with a mild cleaning solution, then apply a self-polishing, water-base wax. pitting is severe, try applying several coats of wax to the clean surface. The polish may help fill in the valleys, level the pitted surface and improve the appearance of the rubber or asphalt. Is it okay to seal resilient flooring in the same way that wood and cork are sealed?

Sealers such as varnish, lacquer and shellac should not be used on resilient flooring. Rubber tile in particular can be damaged by these types of sealers, resulting in cracked, curled, and dried out flooring.

Rotary selects four students for World Affairs Institute

Dr. George H. Pommert, president of the Washington C. H. Rotary Club, has announced the selection of four seniors to attend the 31st annual World Affairs Institute in Cincinnati on April 29 and

The students chosen were Becky Wheat and Mike McDonald, of Washington Senior High School, and Marilyn Seifried and Steve Hendricks, of Miami Trace High School.

One thousand selected students from Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia, will participate in the two-day meeting as guests of their local Rotary clubs. The topic for the 1977 Institute is "Energy — The Worldwide Issues For Our Country".

Ranking authorities from our own and other countries will speak, participate in discussion, and engage in informal question periods with the students. The institute provides a unique opportunity for outstanding students to understand a question of vital importance to the nation.

Participants and their adult leaders, in addition to a comprehensive program of vital information about an important area of international concern, will be afforded an opportunity to tour educational and cultural institutions in Cincinnati. The social highlight of the meeting will be a dance in the Hall of Mirrors of the Netherland

Hilton Hotel in downtown Cincinnati. The World Affairs Institute is organized and sponsored by the Cincinnati Rotary Club, the Cincinnati Council on World Affairs, with the cooperation of WLW-T.

EPA survey raps rules

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency reports compiling a survey it feels may help prove its case that proposed federal regulations against burning high sulfur Ohio coal are too stringent.

The federal sulfur dioxide emission regulations were proposed for Ohio in the summer of 1976 and testimony in subsequent statewide hearings attempted to prove the federal rules too stiff and based upon faulty measurements.

The Ohio EPA has contended that the federal rules were based upon a narrow survey of Ohio points. The state agency claims its survey, which in effect asks coal burners to monitor themselves, will provide better data for formulating the counterproposal the state now is preparing for federal study.

Ohio is the only state without its own federally approved sulfur dioxide emissions standards in effect.

An EPA spokesman also said the survey is an attempt to learn which industries that now use a fuel other than coal would switch to coal if the Ohio variety could legally be burned.

Suit attacks county jail

BATAVIA, Ohio (AP) - A suit seeking to close the overcrowded Clermont County Jail, which has been under fire from civic groups and judges, has been filed in U.S. District

The suit was filed Friday by Attorney John D. Woliver, of the Clermont County Community Council, on behalf of inmates in a class action.

The jail was criticized earlier by the

Clermont County Common Pleas Court judges for lack of ventilation, broken windows and lack of proper meeting space for lawyers and prisoners. The suit alleged the 1939 facility, built for 24 prisoners, is overcrowded, unsanitary, in disrepair and has defective

The suit asked the federal court to order the county commissioners to either closed the jail or build a new one.

AL East domination in Manhattan

Unless all the oddsmakers are wrong and unless a lot of money has been spent in vain, this year's seven-team race in the American League East won't be a race at all.

It'll be six teams squinting into the distance, looking longingly at the New York Yankees.

During the 1976 season the Yanks returned to their glory days of earlier decades. And after it, they went shopping with a vengeance. And without so much as one regular-season pitch this year, the old Yankee word of 'dynasty" is being tossed around.

Behind the Yanks, the Cleveland Indians, Boston Red Sox and Baltimore Orioles figure to skirmish their way through the season for the runner-up spot, perhaps joined by the Detroit Tigers. The Milwaukee Brewers are likely candidates to finish sixth this year, just as they did last year. The only saving grace is that sixth is no longer last. The Toronto Blue Jays, with only a couple of recognizable names on their expansion roster, seem certain to trail the rest of the field by more than a few lengths.

The Yanks cruised to the divisional title by a healthy 1112 games last year—and they did it without Reggie Jackson, Don Gullett, Paul Blair and Jimmy Wynn.

They did it with Thurman Munson (.302 average, 17 home runs, 105 runs batted in), Mickey Rivers (.312 average, 43 stolen bases), Graig Nettles (league-leading 32 homers, 93 RBI), Chris Chambliss (.293 average, 17 homers, 96 RBI), and pitchers Ed Figueroa (19-10), Dock Ellis (17-8), Catfish Hunter (17-15) and Sparky Lyle (league-leading 23 saves).

Jackson's arrival will probably pump another 30 or so homers and maybe 100 RBI into the Yanks' already awesome attack. Gullett, one of Cincinnati's youner aces, has amassed a 61-26 record the past four years including 11-3 in an injury-hampered 1976 season. With all of this, the presumption was that Manager Billy Martin would spend spring training trying to line up some extra World Series tickets for his

But he's got a problem ... to which a couple of dozen managers are probably muttering, "We should have such problems!

Martin's quandry is that with Jackson and Rivers and Blair and Wynn and Roy White and Lou Piniella and Oscar Gamble and Ron Blomberg and others, there are well over a dozen

outfielders rumbling around camp looking for a place on the roster.

It would be nice if one or two of those guys played shortstop. It may be the Yanks' only weakness—unless Mickey Klutts comes through. Last year Fred Stanley played the position and, glovewise, he played it better than anyone else in the league. But he hit a relatively anemic .238.

Klutts, who shared the International League Most Valuable Player honor last year, hit a lusty .319 with 24 homers and 80 RBI at Syracuse. He's got the inside track on a major league starting job this year, once he recovers from a broken hand suffered in spring

The Indians have finished fourth the last three seasons and no better than that since their third-place performance in 1968. On paper, they rate among the division's most improved

With Jim Bibby, Pat Dobson and Dennis Eckersley, they had a respectable starting rotation. It could be a lot more than that with the addition of free-agent Wayne Garland, a 20-game winner with Baltimore last year, and trade-acquired Al Fitzmorris, a 15-game winner at Kansas

George Hendrick and his 25 home runs are gone, but they won't be that sorely missed if Charlie Spikes regains his clout. Even if he doesn't, the Indians' power may be replaced with better averages. Free agent Paul Dade brings a .363 average from the Pacific Coast League and Johnny Grubb comes in from San Diego, where he hit .284.

Just how much Manager Don Zimmer's Red Sox can rebound from last year, when only a late-season surge pushed them over the .500 mark, depends to some degree on Luis Tiant. How effective can the 36-year-old corkscrew pitcher, a 20-game winner three of the past four years, be after protracted salary wrangling and his early absence from training camp?

If Tiant deosn't repeat his feats of recents years, Boston's bullpen may get a lot more work-which it presumably can afford now that Bill Campbell is in it. He's the Red Sox' million-dollar free-agent investment, 17-5 with 20 saves for Minnesota last

The only other new face is an old one. George Scott, a Fenway fixture at third base in the late 1960s, brings his power and first baseman's gold glove back from Milwaukee.

Baltimore lost a lot in the free-agent department-Jackson to the Yanks, Garland to the Indians and second baseman Bobby Grich to California. Manager Earl Weaver is counting on Rich Dauer, the International League batting champ with a .336 average, to fill Grich's spot. And he's hoping Pat Kelly, formerly of the Chicago White Sox, and Elliott Maddox, with the Yanks a year ago, can strengthen the

Beyond Cy Young Award winner Jim Palmer, 22-13 last year, Baltimore's entire pitching corps rates no more than a fat question mark at the

A year ago, Detroit sprung Mark 'The Bird" Fidrych on the world. This year the Tigers are hoping another kid will make that kind of splash. He's 20year-old Dave Rozema, 12-4 with a miniscule 1.57 earned run average in the Southern League last year.

Beyond those two and the batting of outfielder Rusty Staub (.299 average, 15 homers, 96 RBI) and Ron LeFlore (.316), Detroit hasn't got much to bank on. If the injury list of last year (LeFlore, Milt May, Aurelio Rodriguez, Dave Roberts, etc.) is shorter, perhaps things will improve.

Sal Bando will give Milwaukee power and leadership. But the Brewers need an awful lot of both—and contributions from a few other newcomers, too-to get marked improvement.

Cecil Cooper replaces George Scott

replace his power. And Milwaukee may not have a replacement for pitcher

Jim Colborn, gone to Kansas City. Roy Hartsfield, manager of the Blue Jays, will find out whether the rest of league has given him a diamond or two in the rough—or saddled him with has-been and never-will-be types. The latter has been the history of expansion. It's likely to be the same this

Will Bill Singer be Toronto's version of Roger Craig? Remember him? Craig compiled a 13-9 composite record in his two final years with Los Angeles, 1960-61. Then he went to the brand-new New York Mets. His composite record

in 1962-63 was a terrifying 15-46. Will Singer, 20-25 over the past two years with Texas and Minnesota, go the same route Craig did? Will Steve Hargan or Pete Vuckovich? Will veterans like Phil Roof, John Lowenstein and Jim Mason, all of whom batted around .200 last year, contribute anything or will Toronto count more heavily on kids with names like Garth Iorg, Butch Edge, Jeff Byrd and Jim Clancy?

Unless there are an awful lot of diamonds in that rough, it won't really matter which way the Blue Jays leanto experience or youth. They'll end up falling over.

Panthers explode from season starting blocks

EBER, Ohio - The Miami Trace tracksters exploded out of the starting blocks last night and ran away from Greenfield McClain to take their first meet win, 81-46.

The Panthers took 13 first places of

However, those two events are the ones where McClain is the most unstoppable as Randy Seldon ran the 100 in 10 seconds flat while top distance runner Tim Hilterbrand turned two miles in 10:48.5, lapping nearly

Coach Bill Beatty of the Panthers was very pleased with his team following the meet. He had high praise for Ralph Fast, Brian Zurface, and Dan Gifford on their afternoon efforts.

'Gifford was jumping into a 30-milea-hour wind over there (in the long jump)," said Beatty. "That shows he could really get some distance without it (the wind)." Gifford took the event with a jump of 18-11/2.

Beatty commented, "I was super pleased with Ralph (Fast) in the shot and discus. He threw 18 feet better than his personal best in the discus into a cross wind. And that's the toughest wind to throw in.'

Fast easily took the shot and discus with respective throws of 51-81/2 and Zurface also earned Beatty's praise by capturing the 220-yard dash with a 24.6 time and being a member of the mile and 880 relays which both won. Art Schlichter earned mention from Beatty for a second in the high jump and being on both relay teams.

Gifford showed excellent form in the high jump, taking it easily with a jump of 6-2 in the first meet of the year.

Scott Martin scored a first in the pole vault with a jump of 10 feet. Randy Hinkley took second with an identical 10 foot jump. Martin had the least amount of misses to take the event.

Dean Farris took a squeaker in the 120-yard high hurdles with a time of 17 seconds flat. He beat his nearest competitor by just one-tenth of a

Bill Hanners, Trace's top half-miler, took the mile run with a 4:52.8 time. Hanners competed in just this one event, being bothered by a knee injury. Frank Dunn captured the 440 yard event with a time of 56.6 while Ken Ward took the 880 with a time of 2:12.1. Beatty was without the services of a top-notch middle distance man Bill Warnock. Warnock is out of action with an ankle sprain suffered in an exhibition basketball game. Nevertheless, Beatty said, "The people who replaced them (Hanners and Warnock) got as many points as they would have.

Miami Trace will have another dual meet this week as they will host Washington C.H. on Thursday. The meet is scheduled to get underway at 4:30 p.m.

Warriors whip North Carolina

McGuire, Marquette capture NCAA crown

ATLANTA (AP) - For a team that was going nowhere earlier this season, the Marquette Warriors certainly ended up in the right place.

An enigmatic, inconsistent team, Marquette reversed its field dramatically at the right time and followed its own yellow brick road to the top of the college basketball world.

Al McGuire could not explain it - he could only enjoy it after Monday night's 67-59 victory over North Carolina gave him the national championship in his last game as a college coach.

"I honestly don't know what happened to our team," said McGuire after winning his first NCAA championship. "Maybe they stopped listening to the coach. McGuire, who is retiring from basketball to go into private business, never thought he would be in the NCAA playoffs this year, much less be wearing the winner's crown. But his team played mistake-proof basketball against North Carolina, giving him the long sought title.

"I think they fell apart in the second half," McGuire said of North Carolina. "We hung in there."

If any of McGuire's 404 victories in his career could be called a "coaching" victory, this one might be it. Even McGuire admitted to playing a determining role in the outcome, something he usually does not do.

When North Carolina made spectacular rally in the second half, the Marquette coach called timeouts at crucial moments, trying to stop the Tar Heels' momentum.

"Once the avalanche came and we were tied, I tried to stop the avalanche by delays and I called some timeouts.' said McGuire. "Usually we try to do it with contact lens timeouts or something like that. You have to stop the momentum no matter what."

There was another intelligent, if more subtle ploy, used by the brainy Marquette coach. When the Ta Heels went into their patented four-corner offense after coming back from a 12-point deficit and tying the score, McGuire found something else with which to strangle them.

'I kept my big men around the basket so they wouldn't be able to score anything easy inside," said McGuire. The four-corner offense had been a boon to North Carolina all season, but it turned into a bust this time. Carrying the momentum of the game, the Tar Heels apparently lost what they had at this point. After their gallant rally tied the score 45-45, they slowed down the tempo and eventually lost the handle of

Two area bowlers are ranked high in the annual Hoinke Classic bowling tournament in Cincinnati.

Marson Davey, a regular bowler at Bowland Lanes in Washington C.H., and Tom Hatch, a Greenfield Lanes bowler, currently are ranked in fifth place in the doubles division of the prestigious tournament. The tournament continues through September.

Davey rolled a 644 scratch series and Hatch recorded a 628 series. The doubles total was 1,272 scratch, and 1,377 with handicap.

And Oscar-winning actor Jack Lemmon, a Kovacs friend ever since they met while making "Operation Mad Ball" in 1957, is hosting the shows, serving as a guide to the man and his off-beat humor.

He was asked what sort of guy was Kovacs, creator of such memorables as the Nairobi Trio, Miklos Molnar the noted cook and poet Percy Dovetonsils for commercial TV in the 1950s and early 1960s. "Well, he was crazy, first of all," Lemmon laughed. "But his craziness and brilliance were what made him so unique. And the wild, imaginative things only he came up with really were innovations in TV.

'And people tend to forget he was a technical wizard in the use of the camera, the same way Buster Keaton was way back in the silent era. People think of Keaton as a comic.

'But they don't realize he also was one of the great, innovative film makers. Well, Ernie was that way in the early days of television.' Kovacs died at age 43 in an auto accident here in 1962. The Public Broadcasting Service shows featuring his work were compiled and edited by station WTTW in Chicago. Each show is a half-hour in length.

"I never spent 30 seconds with Ernie

that were dull, and I don't think anybody who knew him did, either,' Lemmon recalled.

'He obviously knows who I am, says, 'Good morrrrrning," a big smile. Same with another guy putting in sliding doors. I felt embarrassed as hell...

Lemmon started chuckling. "Now, I damn well know he knew these guys were coming in at 8 a.m. or he wouldn't have insisted for 11/2 hours that we had to stay there.'

But despite Kovacs' legendary zaniness, he said, "he also was a terribly decent man. And that's hard to do when you have a career like his, work for so many people on so many different craft levels.

U.S. trade deficit caused by oil WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's appetite for imported oil helped push the U.S. trade balance into deficit by a record margin in February, the government reported today.

It marked the third time in the last four months that the size of the deficit has set a record.

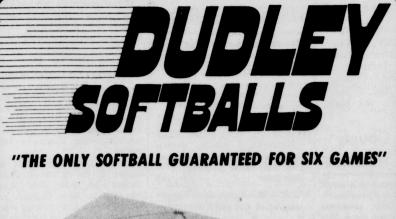

The Commerce Department said that over-all, imports were $1.866 billion larger than exports in February after adjustment for seasonal variations. That compared to the previous record deficit of $1.67 billion in January. The trade deficit also had set a record of $1.034 billion in November.

The nation's trade balance has not run a surplus since it was $380 million in the black last May. Administration analysts had expected the balance to run a little more into deficit this year than the $5.87 billion last year. But the deficit in just the first two months of this year now stands at $3.54 billion.

Administration analysts theorized that trade deficits the size of last year's are beneficial for the world economy because they help U.S. trading partners establish stronger economies and thus increase their demand for U.S. goods. But a sizeable deficit in the U.S. trade accounts mean much of U.S. purchasing power is flowing abroad rather than creating new jobs and demand at home.

Commerce said oil imports were a crucial factor in the February trade performance. The volume of total oil imports was off 10.9 per cent to 238.9 million barrels. But since imports usually drop more steeply than that in February, adjustment for seasonal variations translated the value of oil imports into a 5.6 per cent increase.

Fear of General Anesthesia

was told that I need a relatively important speciality are simple operation. I have no fear of the surgery or the pain afterwards. My terror is about being put to sleep and not beca waking up. — Mrs. R.F., Nev. fear. Dear Mrs. F.:

Apprehension about general anesthesia occurs frequently. As you say, the fear of this prospect is often greater than the fear of pain or the surgery itself. People of all cultural, intellectual and economic levels have expressed such anxiety.

"Will the doctor know that I am completely asleep?" "Will I wake up too soon?" "Will I die under anesthesia?" These are only a few of the many fears of patients who express or, even worse, do NOT express their inner fears.

In order to allay such anxiety, you should know that the modern anesthesiologist visits his patients one or more times before surgery, psychologically prepares them for the experience. It is now accepted that the psychological preparation of all patients is almost as important as other pre-operative studies.

The emotional state of the patient distinctly influences the smoothness of recovery.

Let me assure you that the safety of modern anesthesia

A Seemingly Pointless Play

I am absolutely petrified. I and the advances made in this enormous. It is important that you do not put off the surgery that has been suggested because of your overwhelming

If you reveal your fears to your doctor, he and the surgeon might arrange to do the procedure under local anesthesia and thus spare you your inordinate fears. In some instances this is possible.

My friends think that it's ridiculous for me, at the age of 56, to consider plastic surgery for my face and neck. How do you feel about this? - Mr. H.V.,

Dear Mr. V.:

Many men are having the socalled "face lift" when they feel that their appearance needs to be supported by a youthful look.

A good image of one's self is no longer limited to men and women in the entertainment business. Today, more and more people give themselves that extra emotional "lift" by the procedure of a facial "lift."

Your friends are sincere and kind, but can be confusing in a decision that must be yours and yours alone.

Council to consider rezoning ordinance

A 1.2-acre tract of land near the intersection of John and Elm streets will be the site of three apartment buildings if the Washington C.H. City Council follows the recommendations of the city planning commission.

The city planning commission has recommended the rezoning of the land from R-2 (two-family residences) and M-1 (light manufacturing and warehouse) to R-3 (multi-family residences)

According to city inspector Glenn Tatman, three lots, each with an 80-foot frontage on Elm Street, will be created if the zoning change is approved by City Council. Each of the lots will be 280 feet deep. The land is located across from St. Colman's Catholic Cemetery just south of John Street.

On each lot, a three-family and a twofamily dwelling will be erected. The three-family section will face Elm Street and the two-family section will face the rear of the lot, according to

The tract of land on which the three lots are situated is owned by Donald Hawk, 615 Washington Ave., who is a missionary in Central America during most of the year.

Presently, there are two houses on the tract of land and Hawk plans to dismantle those structures to form the three lots. The two houses marked for removal are located between two other houses on Elm Street. These two houses are not owned by Hawk and they will presumably be left standing.

City Council will hold a public hearing at its regular scheduled meeting on April 27 at the Carnegie Public Library regarding the adoption of a zoning change ordinance.

Interested persons may attend the hearing and voice their opinions on the proposed zoning change. The proposed amendment to the city's zoning ordinance, including texts and maps, may be examined at the clerk's office in the city office building.

Columbia Gas meets demands

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The board chairman of Columbia Gas System, Inc., has met still another demand from Gov. James A. Rhodes by detailing the company's plans for developing land it leases in Ohio.

B.J. Clarke also told the governor Monday that the system should have a "somewhat greater" natural gas supply available for next winter.

Clarke's prediction and details of development plans were in response to a request Rhodes made during a meeting between the two March 21. During the session, Rhodes extracted a promise from Clarke that the natural gas conglomerate will carry Ohioproduced gas in its federally regulated pipelines contrary to tradition and the normal reading of Federal Power Commission regulations.

Rhodes was not satisfied with that promise alone and demanded an accounting of Columbia's plans for 584,000 acres leased for gas production within

Clarke explained in his report to the governor that Columbia's purchase of 'substantial amounts of emergency gas" and storage facilities expected to "fully packed" by Nov. 1, 1977, should give Ohio more natural gas next winter than the past one.

Clarke's latest report to Rhodes details the use 391,000 of those acres, claiming that drilling is underway on 79,000 acres, complete on 150,000 acres, under a working agreement on 59,000 acres, and under exploration on 103,000.

The remaining acres, Clarke reported, are pending farm-out or subcontracting, reserved for shale development, or being abandoned. The company has been criticized by some for failing to develop more storage fields in Ohio. Clarke has taken the stance that storage capacity increases mean little without additional supplies to fill that capacity.

His Monday report to Rhodes indicated that nearly 46 per cent of the system's total storage is located in Ohio where 49 per cent of deliveries are made. Clarke said the investment in Ohio storage amounts to $125 million.

Clarke's letter ended with a reminder to Rhodes that the promise to carry Ohio-produced gas in the interstate system still depends upon FPC ap-

"During our meeting on March 21, we mutually recognized that Columbia could not 'take any action that violates any of its legal duties to the Federal Commission."

Rhodes had asked Columbia to carry

FPC spokesmen said the Colorado decision was not identical to the Ohio case because the pipelines in question in Ohio do not terminate in this state as was treated to a guided tour of Mexico Monday night at its regular weekly dinner meeting in the Terrace Lounge. Club member Larry Lloyd, who recently returned from Mexico, provided the program with color slides.

Lloyd is an engineer with the Proctor and Gamble Co., Cincinnati, and was temporarily assigned to Mexico to assist in the construction of the company's newest plant in the capital city of the country. Lloyd said that Mexico City is the oldest continuously inhabitied city and capital in North America. The city was originally a shallow lake with several small islands.

He said the climate around Mexico City is mild with a temperature range of 30 to 85 degrees.

Pyramids in the area are different from any others in the world, he said. The pyramids are believed to be some of the oldest in the world and were

Lloyd also presented slides and answered questions about several other well-known cities such as San Luis, Guadalupe, Acapulco and Taxco.

Guests attending the meeting were John Rich with George Gibbs, Russell Depugh with Norman Armbrust, James Oughterson with Ron Lott and M.B. Cusbin of the Columbus Kiwanis Club.

Charter members Robert Parrett and Louie Kuhlwein received pins for 18 years of continuous service.

Michael Campbell, general chairman of the Kiwanis Club's annual teen talent show, said auditions for the event will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday in Persinger Hall of the First Presbyterian Church.

Over 800 attend opening performance

Lions Club variety show may shatter old attendance marks

C.H. Lions Club variety show could shatter all previous two-performance attendance records.

A record crowd of 831 persons attended the opening performance of "Showboat: Then and Now" Monday night in the Washington C.H. Middle School auditorium.

Richard Patton, ticket sales chairman, said the crowd represented "the biggest Monday night we've ever had."

The previous record was established a year ago when 790 persons attended Monday night's performance.

The receptive audience completely filled the downstairs section of the Middle School auditorium and more than half of the balcony. Only the upper section of the balcony, which has a seating capacity for 200 persons, was empty for Monday night's show.

Judging by the number of reserved

The record for two performances was established in 1975 when more than 1,700 persons attended Monday and Tuesday night shows. The all-time record was set a year ago when 2,450 persons attended an expanded threeperformance format.

Monday night's brought with it difficulty in locating parking spaces and several showgoers were forced to park a great distance from the auditorium. Some persons were still being seated after the show had started.

Patton urged persons attending tonight's final perfromance to report to the auditorium early, especially if they are planning to buy tickets at the door. Over 50 tickets were sold at the door

As of Tuesday morning, Patton said 839 persons had purchased reserved seat tickets for the final performance. The auditorium has a seating capacity for 1,050 persons. The scene for this year's home talent entertainment program is set around an old-time river boat. The program features both nostalgic and con-temporary tunes and the costumes of cast members perfectly match the The highlights in the opening segment include William C. Jones' solo of "Without a Song," quartet routine with Larry Lehman, George W. (Bud) Naylor, Paul Johnson and Vic Pontious singing "Kentucky Babe," and snappy dance routines featuring Lions and Lioness club members.

But, the top crowd-pleasing performance Monday night was a banjo medley by Bob Woodmansee. The audience commanded an encore performance from the Washington C.H. area banjo player.

A Dixieland band, comprised of Dustin Girton, Dr. Ron Walker, Dr. Warren Craig, Pontious and Sam Kimpel, is also featured in the opening segment.

Women's and men's choruses are featured in the second half of the show which focuses on more modern music. More comedy is also spotlighted after intermission and the top skit finds Mr. and Mrs. Donald (Gig) Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Willoughby and Mrs. Frances Tye strutting about the stage in formal attire to the tune of "In the

Police officer's dog helps in capturing two suspects

Washington C.H. Police Capt. Dennis Brown apprehended two breaking and entering suspects Monday night with a little help from his dog, Merco.

Capt. Brown was dispatched at 10:07 p.m. to the Red Rose Farm and Feed Supply Co., 926 Clinton Ave., after police officers received a breaking and entering report

Upon arrival, Brown spotted two men in the company office. Since there was no other police officer at the scene, Brown could not return to the police cruiser to request assistance. However, a doberman pinscher, which occasionally accompanies Brown on night patrols, was at the scene.

As one subject attempted to flee from the building, Brown sent Merco to the front door to prevent an escape. Brown then called to several employes of the Pennington Bakery, who were near the scene, to contact the police depart-

Brown and Merco were able to keep the suspects in the building until police officers and Fayette County sheriff's deputies arrived.

Taken into custody were Herbert Ray Thompson, 29, who claimed he resides on Maple Street, and Ronald Langley, 36, of 3478 Knight Road. Both suspects are being held in the city jail in lieu of bond and appearance before Judge John P. Case in Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Several minutes before the breaking and entering report was received at the police station, a report of a breaking and entering in progress at the Marting Manufacturing Co. was received.

Police officers and sheriff's deputies responded to the report at 809 Delaware A window on the south side of the building had been broken and the building entered.

Officers conducted building and found that the office area had been entered, but apparently nothing had been taken. The suspects apparently exited the building through the front door. The police department also investigated a larceny report and a vandalism incident Monday.

A.B. Thomas of Huntington, W. Va., told police officers that someone stole a sheel cover from his car while it was parked at 526 Mulberry St. early Monday morning. The wheel cover was

Ohio Highway Patrol Trooper Lester R. Reel, 25, Wilmington, received a slight back sprain in the incident and he was treated at the Fayette County Memorial Hospital emergency room.

According to the Washington C.H. Police Department, Trooper Reel stopped a pickup truck in the 1200 block of Rawlings Street at 2:58 a.m. for a traffic violation.

After Reel placed the driver of the truck, Walter D. Aills Sr. of 1218 Rawlings St., in the patrol cruiser, the passenger in the truck, Walter D. Aills Jr., 26 of 1245 Rawlings St., reportedly became beligerant and jumped behind the wheel of the truck.

Trooper Reel warned the younger Aills not to drive the truck, but he four-foot hole in the house

An Ohio Highway Patrol trooper reportedly stepped on the accelerator and drove at Reel. The officer managed to jump out of the way and the truck struck a parked van owned by Michael

Commission appoints new welfare director

Frank Stanley, 3586 White Road, has been appointed as the new director of the Fayette County Welfare Department by the Fayette County Board of Commissioners.

The 34-year-old Stanley officially assumed the position Monday following the retirement of O.M. Riegel on Friday. Riegel, 740 Highland Ave., served as welfare director for 14 years, following the retirement of Beryl Cockerill in 1963.

Stanley has been a member of the county welfare department staff for seven yeas. He was a case worker for two years before serving as the social service supervisor for the past five

Stanley said he would use the first week of his appointment to become accustomed with the director's duties. Next week, he will attend a orientation workshop for new directors. The workshop, which will be held in Columbus, is sponsored by the office of staff development of the Ohio Welfare Department.

Stanley, presently, has 22 employes under his command. This total includes supervisors, case workers, and secretaries at the county office. So far, he has not named a replacement to fill the position he left to assume the directorship of the department.

Stanley will be supervising four divisions of the local welfare department. The divisions are income maintenance, social service, children's services, and food stamp services.

A 1960 graduate of Greenfield McClain High School, Stanley was employed as an assistant manager of merchandising for Bullock's Department Stores in Los Angeles, Calif., before returning to Ohio to join the Fayette County Welfare Department. He is also a veteran of the U.S. Navy.

Presently, Stanley serves on the Scioto-Paint Valley Mental Health Center board of trustees and the home health advisory council of the Fayette County Department of Health. He is also a member of the Fayette County 4-H Committee and he directs a local 4-H

He and his wife, Pamela, have a fouryear-old daughter, Erin.

Mrs. Ethel I. Putnam

FRANKFORT - Services for Mrs. Ethel I. Putnam, 94, Frankfort, will be held at 1 p.m. Thursday in the Frankfort United Presbyterian Church with Pastor K.B. Cohee officiating. Burial will be in Frankfort Greenlawn

Cemetery.
Mrs. Putnam died at 1:50 a.m. Monday in the Ross County Medical Center, Chillicothe.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Charles, in 1958. She was a member of the Concord Chapter 520 of the Eastern Star and the Women's Society of the Frankfort United Presbyterian Church.

She is survived by a son, Dr. John Lyle Putnam, Pittsburgh, Pa., and three granddaughters, Susan Putnam of San Diego, Calif., Carolyn Putnam of North Long Branch, N.J., and Mrs. Joanne Gannon of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Friends may call from 6 to 9 p.m. Wednesday at the Fisher Funeral Home in Frankfort. An Eastern Star Service will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the funeral home.

Those who wish may make memorial contributions in Mrs. Putnam's name to the Frankfort United Presbyterian Church

RUSSELL CARSON - Services for Russell Carson, 57, of Bellville, were held at 11 a.m. Monday in the Morrow-Huffman Funeral Home, Washington C.H., with the Rev. Ronald Emptagah, of Mansfield, officiating.

Mr. Carson, a press operator for the White-Westinghouse Corp. who moved to the Mansfield area from Washington C.H. in 1946, died Friday.

The flag of the World War II veteran was folded by Randy Aills and Keith McCoy of the JNROTC brigade at Washington Senior High School and presented to Mr. Carson's wife,

Pallbearers for the burial in Washington Cemetery were John Fields, Brad and Michael Tolle, Rick Roberts, Phil Russell and Steve Begin, all members of the Washington Senior High School JNROTC unit. Taps were sounded by Beth Van Meter, a member of the Washington Senior High School

City clean-up

Tatman is being assisted in the doorto-door canvass of Washington C.H. residential areas by Vernon Stanforth, city field inspector trainee. Stanforth was hired recently through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program.

City officials have estimated that at least 200 Washington C.H. residents are presently in violation "neatness" or-

The ordinance reads:

"No person shall store, place or allow to remain, used building materials, motor vehicles in an inoperative condition, automobile parts, scrap metal, refuse or rubbish on any lot zoned residential within the corporate limits of the city.'

Tatman said the unusually harsh winter caused some of the rubbish to build up on residential property. He pointed out that there were several days when refuse removal trucks could not operate and roads were closed to area landfills.

The city inspector said there are probably 100 junked vehicles parked on Washington C.H. or residential properties that should be removed or restored to operation.

According to a city code, a "motor vehicle in an inoperative condition" means any style or type of motordriven vehicle which is unable to move under its own power due to defective or missing parts.

Karen Quinlan 2 years in coma

MORRIS PLAINS, N.J. (AP) - The parents of comatose Karen Anne Quinlan, whose "right to die" case resulted in a landmark state court decision, planned to attend a nativity mass today to mark her 23rd birthday.

Joseph and Julia Quinlan, who have visited their daughter daily since she lapsed into a coma April 15, 1975, will join her grandparents and other relatives for the service at the Morris View Nursing home here where she is being cared for.

Vote reform compromise sought

Republican leaders unveiled amendments today aimed at reaching a compromise with majority Democrats on a sweeping election reform bill that would enable voters to register on election day.

Although the amendments would modify the intent of the Democrat-and labor-backed bill, they represent a major policy shift, easing longstanding Republican resistance to measures that substantially ease and simplify voting procedures

State senators met Monday night but only one bill was introduced in a brief floor session. Afterward the Finance Committee heard budget presentations from the offices of the attorney general and secretary of state.

Minority Whip Thomas A. Van
Meter, R-19 Ashland, who will offer the election bill amendments in committee readily admitted Republicans were ready to accept the inevitability of wider, more accessible registratinn.

The key GOP amendment would eliminate the "instant registration" proposal, but mandate registration in all 88 Ohio counties and allow voters to enroll up to 21 days before an election, erasing the current 30-day deadline. Twenty-two Ohio counties have no

'We are going to discourage voters by the long lines if you have people signing up on election day," Van Meter said. "We believe that everyone should register that can, but don't make it inconvenient.

Some Republicans feel large voter turnouts hurt their chances in an election, particularly if the votes come from minority areas

The big get out the vote effort by Democrats was credited as a major factor in President Carter's Ohio victory last November, and Van Meter himself once blamed the Democratic turnout for Republican losses in the state senate.

Republicans are also willing to accept extension from the present two years to four years, the time lapse allowed without voting before a person's registration is canceled. In the bill's present form the registration would be all but permanent, a step that Secretary of State Ted W. Brown fears would make it extremely difficult to keep records accurate.

Gov. James A. Rhodes vetoed a statewide registration bill last year because it called for four-year registratoon. If all else fails VanMeter has two backup amendments prepared.

First, he would require the General Assembly to provide funds for added election day registration costs that he estimates at $2 million for additional personnel alone.

Secondly, when voters sign up on election day, Van Meter wants a sign conspicuously placed in the precinct, warning of the penalties for voting twice, or other election fraud.

"They'll (Democrats) say that's intimidating," Van Meter predicted. "It's only intimidating if you plan to cast more than one ballot."

Senate may scrap tax rebate plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - If you've already figured out how to spend that $50 tax rebate President Carter wants to give to most Americans, think again. There are increasing indications the Senate may scrap the rebate and substitute a permanent tax cut.

Senate debate on the tax proposals will begin in another week and may not be completed until after Congress returns in mid April from its Easter

And what members of Congress hear during trips home may be the decisive factor in determining whether a rebate or a permanent tax cut is in the bill that goes to the White House.

The fight over the rebate carries the potential for the most serious conflict to date between Carter and Congress, more serious than clashes over protocol and water projects that have marked the first 60 days of the Carter presidency.

Carter is pressing for the rebate as the way to give a quick boost to the economy. But congressional support for the rebate, even among Democrats, is, at best, lukewarm.

"I plan to vote for it," said Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., when asked his opinion of the "Enthusiastically?" he was asked. "No," replied Byrd. But, he said, "It's the President's program. It's part of his economic stimulus program." On the Republican side, the votes are lined up, 38 to 0, against the rebate.

among the Democrats as well as of the vote of Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. of Virginia, an independent.

When the Senate Finance Committee voted to keep the Carter rebate in the bill rather than substitute a permanent tax cut, the tally followed party lines, with the 10 Democrats voting for the rebate and the 7 Republicans plus Harry Byrd opposing it.

Plane crash survivors set flight home for treatment

SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP) - U.S. and Spanish officials began preparations today to fly survivors of history's worst aviation disaster back to the United

The U.S. Army Burn Center in San Antonio, Tex., said it was preparing to receive about 60 of the 70 survivors from the collision Sunday on the Santa Cruz airport runway of two Boeing 747 jumbo jets in which 575 persons were

Sixty-seven of the survivors and 321 of the dead were Americans, according to information from the airlines.

Meanwhile, Spanish, Dutch and American officials continued their investigations to determine the cause of the collision, which occurred as the Pan American and KLM jetliners were preparing to take off in fog from this Atlantic island.

Spanish authorities ruled out sabotage and claimed there had been no errors in control tower communications with the two planes.

Officials said they would inspect the 10,000-foot runway, which has been closed by wreckage and bad weather since the collision of the two planes, to determine if there was enough space clear for a U.S. Air Force C-130 transport to land.

A C-130 from a base in Spain was waiting at Las Palmas, on the neighboring island of Grand Canary, for clearance. The homeward-bound Americans were to be transferred at Las Palmas to an Air Force C-141 to be flown to McGuire Air Force Base in

A spokesman for the burn center said 10 of the survivors to be flown to Texas for treatment were in serious or critical condition and 20 others were litter

U.S. officials said the airlift would also include some survivors who did not require hospitalization, but no names were announced.

The KLM jetliner was hurtling down the runway at about 150 miles an hour for takeoff when it rammed into the Pan American plane as it was turning off the runway onto a taxiway, Spanish officials said.

They said both pilots were told to taxi down the main runway, with the KLM craft in the lead. The Dutch pilot was told to turn around and prepare for takeoff but to hold his position until given clearance, while the Pan Am jet was to turn off at a taxiway and wait for the KLM plane to clear, they said.

Gov. Antonio Oyarzabal said the planes collided nearly headon, and the 'key point" was whether the KLM pilot had permission to take off.

The Dutch pilot, Z. A. Veldhuisen van Zanten, was killed along with the other 248 persons reported aboard his plane. But KLM president Sergio Orlandini said the pilot was one of the airline's most experienced fliers and he doubted he would have begun his takeoff without clearance.

The Pan American pilot, Capt. Victor Grubbs of Centerport, N.Y., was among the 70 injured survivors from his plane, but no explanation from him of what happened was made public.

actor Oscar for his portrayal of a mad broadcaster in "Network." In the most poignant moment of Monday night's nationally-telecast awards show, Liv Ullmann opened the Best Actor envelope and read, "Peter Finch, for 'Network.'"

The crowd at the packed Music Center roared its approval, as Finch, who died of a heart attack Jan. 14, became the first actor ever to win the award posthumously.

Faye Dunaway won the best actress award for her blistering performance "Network" as the hard-driving executive who sacrificed all for suc-

The Oscar for the best picture went to "Rocky," which was made for a 'cheap" $1 million and featured a thenunknown leading man - Sylvester Stallone. The story of a down-and-out fighter's shot at the heavyweight title also won a director's Oscar for John G. Avildsen and another for best film editing

Some critics said the affair lacked some of the excitement of past Oscar nights, but that was in part by design. "Exorcist" director William Freidkin, who produced this year's show, cut down on some of the onstage chit-chat and offstage glitter in an effort to produce a more dignified show.

What he got was a more dignified show that dragged in parts.

"It looks like we could have used some of that meaningless interchange," one Academy official mumbled in reference to Freidkin's move from two presenters to one.

Unlike last year, when "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Next" swept all the major categories, this year's homage by the film industry to itself lacked a big winner. "Network" and "All the President's Men," each with four statuettes, won the most. Stallone's "Rocky" took three Oscars.

"It was a classic case of timing, man and material," Stallone said in a backstage assessment of the film that at one time nobody wanted if he was to be part of the deal. Stallone, who wrote pointment he may have felt at losing in the Best Actor category.

Asked if it was true that he wrote the enormously popular film in three days, the 30-year-old actor replied, "I wrote it in two days, but I didn't want to seem loke a prodigy." Snappy work for a man who'd never seen a fight until he was 29.

Jason Robards, the actor who brought perfection to Eugene O'Neill material on stage, won an Oscar for his portrayal in "All The President's Men" of Ben Bradlee, the Washington Post's executive editor. It was Robards' first Oscar nomination.

Beatrice Straight, who lost husband William Holden to Faye Dunaway in "Network," was named best supporting actress. Miss Straight, who spent years on Broadway and did a stint in the quickly folded television "Beacon Hill," won the Academy's honor on the basis of only two brief scenes in the film.

"I was stunned," the American-born, English-educated actress backstage, "very stunned. I must have looked like an idiot up there. 'Network" also won an Oscar for what Friedkin had termed the "tackiness" of previous Oscar shows, there were some touching moments.

There were tears aplenty when, in accepting the best actor award for Finch, Paddy Chayevsky stepped to the microphone and said, "There's only one person who should accept this Mrs. Peter Finch."

Amid a standing ovation, Finch's widow, Eletha, walked to the stage. With tears in her eyes she relayed a message she said her husband had wanted to give to the Academy.

"He said, 'Darling, if I win I want to say thanks to my fellow actors who have given me encouragement through the years, to Paddy, who gave me this part ... and most of all, to you, darling, for sending me the right vibes."

Back stage, the actor's Jamaicanborn widow said her husband had 'wanted an Oscar between the teapots. So, I'm going to stick it there.' "Evergreen," Barbra Streisand's love song to Kris Kristofferson in "A Star is Born," won an Oscar for Miss Streisand, who wrote the music, and Paul Williams, who wrote the lyrics. Leonard Rosenman won an Oscar for his scoring adaptation of "Bound For Glory," while Jerry Goldsmith's score for "The Omen" won for original score. William Goldman's screen adaptation of Robert Woodward and Carl Bernstein's "All The President's Men"

Stocks make early gains

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices turned upward today, bidding to end the slide of the past eight sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose about 3 points in early trading, and gainers took a 2-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The upswing was attributed to technical forces within the market. Analysts said traders were doing some buying on the theory that the market was likely to find support with the Dow at the bottom end of the range in which it has fluctuated for the past year. Today's early prices included General Motors, up 3/8 at 691/8; National Semiconductor, ahead 5/8 at 213/8; Asarco, unchanged at 22, and American Home Products, off 1/8 at

Pentagon to review Viet-era discharges

WASHINGTON (AP) — On orders of the President, the Pentagon will consider upgrading undesirable and general discharges for 432,530 Vietnam-era servicemen. Among them is Jack Carter, eldest son of the commander-in-chief.

The Defense Department announced Monday that Carter had approved its plans to review in "the spirit of forgiveness and compassion" discharges given for desertion, drug abuse and other causes between Aug. 4, 1964, and March 28, 1973.

The announcement marked the second step in Carter's effort to heal the divisiveness of the Vietnam war. But unlike his blanket pardon on Jan. 21 for thousands of Vietnam-era draft evaders, the discharge review will be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Eligible ex-servicemen and women will have six months to seek a review of their papers. The Pentagon said it would announce guidelines for them within a week.

Official figures show that 173,006 undesirable discharges and 259,524

general discharges were issued during the Vietnam era. Among those with undesirable discharges are 69,170 deserters who did not take part in former President Gerald R. Ford's clemency program. The new program does not affect some 1,903 dishonorable and 28,759 bad conduct discharges issued to servicemen after courts-martial. Jack Carter, 29, reportedly received general discharge - one step below honorable — after he and 53 classmates were caught smoking marijuana at the Navy Nuclear Power School in Idaho Falls, Idaho., in late 1970. Carter had served more than 21/2 years.

He now practices law in Calhoun, Ga. The Pentagon announcement said servicemen discharged "for reasons involving violence, criminal intent or the use of force" would not be eligible under the review program. Servicemen who "successfully completed an assignment in Southeast Asia or in the western Pacific in support of operations in Southeast Asia' will automatically be eligible for

Urge extended pay plan for utilities

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The new state Consumers' Counsel wants gas utilites to start advertising their extended payment plans and to work closely with community action groups before shutting off service.

"There is no uniform way for all Ohio consumers to find out about a way to pay these bills," William A. Spratley told his governing board Monday.

To develop that "uniform" practice Spratley and the board adopted a joint statement calling upon all gas and electric utilites to: "1. Make every effort to provide for

Americans face heat bill pinch

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Thousands of Americans unable to pay higher heating bills during the unusually cold winter are being threatened with loss of service if they don't pay soon.

Many utilities, allowing a grace period because of the cold winter, postponed service shutoffs until the end of the heating season. But the end of the season is at hand, and an Associated Press survey found that notices warning of electric and gas shutoffs are in the mail to thousands of Americans. The number of overdue bills ranged from 3 per cent to 20 per cent more than last year, the utilities reported. Some utilities and state agencies are trying to find solutions short of cutoff for those who can't pay.

"We'll start catching up with the winter leftovers and our termination will reach a thousand a month or more," according to a spokesman for the Public Service Co. in New Hampshire, the state's largest supplier of electric power. It usually terminates about 250 customers a month in winter.

In a number of states, utilities had to state-imposed comply

moratoriums against cutting off heat to households

But by March 31, generally considered the end of the heating season, most will have ended and service cutoffs can be enforced.

A number of states and cities are working with federal agencies to make money available to the needy, either in the form of loans or grants. The average household had to pay $139 more to keep warm this winter than last, a Senate subcommittee concluded in a study.

In Connecticut, for example, Gov. Ella Grasso set aside $250,000 to be used to pay emergency fuel needs of the 40,000 families eligible for Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Here are some of the hardest-hit areas where families, particularly the poor in northern states, will have to find some way to pay: -In Rhode Island, the moratorium was lifted last week. The Providence Gas Co. said it is sending out about 400 warning notices per day. The company said about 40 per cent of its customers

Sound election reforms

There are two ideal preconditions for representative rule in our democratic society. One is that the greatest possible number of those eligible a vote shall cast a ballot. The other is that each vote shall carry maximum weight at the polls.

The two chief elements in the election reform package submitted by the administration are aimed at bringing the nation closer to these ideals. The White House proposes amending the Constitution to substitute direct popular election of the chief executive for the present electoral college system. It proposes also that Congress enact a universal registration law whereby eligible citizens could register even on election day in national elections. These are desirable changes. The electoral college poses dangers which the nation has more than once escaped by the skin of its teeth; on three occasions this system installed as president the candidate who had lost in the popular vote. This almost occurred for the fourth time last November. Though the Carter popular margin was 1.7 million votes, a small shift in a couple of states would have altered the outcome. Direct popular election also is preferable because, unlike the electoral college, it would give each vote its full effect.

Universal registration is sound in principle. Permitting voters to register on election day would be an acceptable way of achieving this, or an any rate making it much more likely than at present. Experience in the four states which now allow election-day registration suggests that voter fraud - especially since tough penalties figure in the administration plan - would not be a

Two other aspects of the White House election reform proposals also merit support. The heavy special-interest funding congressional candidates in the 1976 elections reemphasized the advantages of public financing. Liberalizing of the outmoded Hatch Act to allow partisan political ac-tivity by federal employes is long overdue. These changes, like direct presidential election and some form of universal registration, would improve the functioning of the electoral system.

On the minus side, however, you are inclined to be selfish, overly aggressive and intensely stubborn. Also, you put too much value on material considerations in mapping out your goals. Try to curb these traits since they only stand in the way of your progress. And you have so much going for you that it would be a shame if you allowed such negative characteristics to offset the value of your many talents. So many fields are open to you that you may have difficulty in choosing but, once you have found your proper niche in life, there are no limits to the heights you can attain. "Myrtle... fella out here wants my opinion on something!"

My problem, simply stated, is that I don't want to know the "real me." Every so often, usually on long plane flights, I have dabbled with introspection. However, as the awful truths began to emerge from my subconscious, I have said to myself; 'Johnnie, this way lies madness,' slammed the trapdoor, and ordered a

My difficulties began early. Both Mother and Dad seemed to have an acute perception of the "real me," and set to work to exorcise it with a belt, a hairbrush or whatever instrument came conveniently to hand. I became convinced they knew things about me I didn't know, that deep down inside I was a selfish, mean unloving, even homicidal creature. True, perhaps—though in fact I never really tried to kill my brother. It just looked that way.

In any event, I set to work to build a facade, to convince people I was generous, friendly, sympathetic. With hard work I almost mastered my hairtrigger temper - not since the war have I really cut loose with an 8 Richter Scale rage. Later I read Freud and learned that I was "repressed." This was disturbing — all that effort wasted? — until further reading revealed that the Dr. believed "repression is the price we pay for civilization." civiliaztion.'

What Tom Wolfe has done in his sparkling, often savage satire - his writing is a cross between George Orwell and Evelyn Waugh — is explain why, over the past decade, I have often felt like a historical monument awaiting certification by a commission. He baptizes this era the "Me Decade," and in a series of essays on varying topics develops the hypothesis that the architects of American culture opted for pure, unadulterated narcisism, the cult of ego-worship.

This rip-off operation was particularly visible in colleges and universities. One example comes to mind. In 1970 a student in political theory, perhaps 19 years old, casually referred to Aristotle as a "real, heavy, you know, man, (expletive deleted) thinker." I was startled; not because I hadn't heard the word before, but because I knew this seemingly illiterate young man had done honors work at a good, ritzy private school. So tried something: He congratulated on presenting the class with an unknown word, one we could all

You realize, naturally, that what I am doing here is demonstrating my repression, my refusal to come to terms with the existential John Roche. You are right-and I am prepared to take the strain. The existential John Roche in 1970 would have gone to work on a faculty meeting with a chair leg and would now be the librarian in some slammer! But thanks, Tom Wolfe: Your sugeon's touch removed a wart from my psyche. I'm repressed and proud of it: There's a great deal to be

Carter energy plan not too painful?

By WALTER R. MEARS AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — When — and if - President Carter's energy program becomes law, it will be felt right down to brother Billy's Amoco station in Plains.

But it is more likely to be a twinge than a pain.

There probably will be smaller automobiles, less gasoline to go into them and a higher federal tax on every

Natural gas prices will go up sub-stantially, and there are indications that they will be accompanied by some form of excess profits tax, to make sure that producers don't pocket the proceeds instead of using some of the money to search for new supplies.

Using a system of tax incentives, loans and perhaps federal instructions tacked onto local building codes, Washington will seek to insulate the nation's homes and offices, old and new. Homeowners and landlords are going to have to pay for it. As rapidly as possible, the government will end the use of natural gas to generate electricity, pressing and possibly compelling conversion of those power plants to coal.

This will involve bending some clean air and other environmental standards

although there won't be a wholesale retreat on that front.

There will be mandatory constraints on the use of energy, Carter has said, and while he did not enumerate the contraints, it is in that compulsion that he anticipates political trouble.

Carter said long ago that he was prepared to take the political risk, tell the nation what had to be done, and make it stick. The telling begins on April 20, before a joint session of Congress, when Carter delivers his energy policy message.

He says it will "substantially change the lifestyle of the American people.' Carter has outlined some major features of his energy policy, as candidate and as President. Unless he has major urprises to present next month, it doesn't look all that painful. It will mean higher prices, but that's nothing new. Prices that would have been unthinkable five years ago are posted on every gas pump in the country.

Granted, the party invitations should not have been passed out at school unlessthe whole class was invited, but the incident should have been used as an object lesson. This world is full of rude and thoughtless people, and life is often a series of snubs, disappointments and frustrations, which children should learn to handle early.

Eleven-year-olds who have not learned how to deal with rejection have been overprotected, and overprotected children develop into adults who can't cope with everyday life.

Parents should not shelter their children from common occurrences, and they shouldn't be too sympathetic. And above all, they should never try to soothe injured feelings with a gift or

DEAR GRAMMY: You make a good point. Overprotected children develop into adults who can't cope with life's everyday problems. But to deny or repress our true feelings instead of accepting them and dealing with them unhealthy.

Feeling "hurt" when rejected is normal at any age, and nothing to be ashamed of. Unfortunately, our society and culture has made a taboo of crying in public. DEAR ABBY: You recently printed a

DEAR ABBY: How do you address mail to couples who are living together but aren't husband and wife? I just can't address a letter to "Mr. Jack Jones and Miss Valerie Johnson." And it wouldn't sound too good to address it, "Mr. Jack Jones and Shack-up". I'm not condemming it, I'm just confused. Can I just leave off the last names and address it to Jack and Valerie?

It certainly a problem that needs to be put straight. How about it, Abby? Please give us old-fashioned folks some

Senators oppose ethics restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Is there a doctor in the House? Yes, but under a proposed new ethics code, there isn't likely to be one in the Senate. And no lawyers, engineers or architects, say critics of the code.

Senators opposing the adoption of the proposed code of ethics suggest that if the code is approved as written the only "licensed professionals" in the Senate of the future will be auto mechanics, plumbers, hairdressers and interior

CINCINNATI (AP) - ABC News science editor Jules Bergman has predicted a future which could include living to be 90 years old, having at least two careers and, if we haven't yet reached our 50th birthday, having a chance to get a seat on the space

All this could depend on human race on blowing itself up first, Bergman told National Science Teachers Association convention which is meeting here.

SMOOTH SURFACE FLOORS Today's smooth surface flooring designs are as varied as nature and man's creativity can make them. New materials, new styles, and a wide range of colors, patterns and textures are being introduced on our markets each year. With new technology, has come flooring with new procedures and products for maintenance. Unfortunately, even today no smooth surface floor covering is maintenance free. All types require some attention.

What are smooth surface floors and how do you care for them?

Smooth surface floors are divided into three categories: Resilient, hard, and wood or cork. Resilient flooring includes linoleum, vinyl, vinyl asbestos, asphalt tile, and rubber tile. Self-polishing, water-base floor products are generally used for the care of resilient flooring. Some common brands are Aero, Bruce, Future, Glo-Coat, Klear, Pronto and Super Bravo. Solvent-base buffing waxes can be used on resilient flooring, except some asphalt or rubber tile, and may be preferred by owners of electric polishers. Some common brands are Beautiflor, and Paste Wax. Be sure to try any solvent-based products first in an inconspicuous area before using on white or very light flooring since it may mask the true color of the floor. Always read the label and follow directions carefully when using any floor care product.

Hard flooring includes marble, terrazzo, ceramic tile, slate, terra cotta, bluestone, and brick. Selfpolishing, water-base floor products can be used on these floorings and will produce a shiny finish. A solvent-base buffing wax gives a satiny luster and is particularly recommended for the darker color stone floors. This type of wax would be an obvious choice when a floor polisher is available for buffing.

Wood and Cork. The richly patterned oak heads the list of hard or open-grain woods. Close-grain woods used for floors are maple, birch, douglas fir and yellow pine. Cork is another natural flooring. It's subtle texture and rich wood tone makes it an attractive material for flooring. Both wood and cork are porous and absorptive and should be given a protective coating, called a sealer to provide resistance to wear and spills. Most frequently used sealers are varnich, shellac, lacquer or penetrating sealer. Solvent-base waxes are recommended for these floors. You may choose from the buffing kind such as Beautiflor and Paste or the self polishing like Bruce Clean and Wax, Bruce One Step, One Step by Bissell, and Klear Wood Floor Wax What is a wax, finish, polish?

A was refers to a protective floor care product made with natural waxes, synthetic waxes and or a blend of both. They may also contain polymeric type resins. A finish refers to the durable protective floor film made primarily from synthetic ingredients such as vinyl or acrylic polymers. A polish is a protective film applied to floors that provides some amount of gloss. It can be either a wax or finish.

What is the difference in water-base products and solvent-base products?

Water-based products are those in which water is the carrier for the tiny particles of wax and-or polymers that provide the shine and protective film for floors. They are formulated to withstand the stress of heavy traffic and detergent washings. Since they are water-base they are not recommended for wood or cork floors.

Solvent-base products contain rich natural waxes along with a solvent, usually naphtha. It acts as a cleaning agent to loosen soil and to soften and remove the previous coat of solventbase wax as the new coat is applied. There is no wax build-up problem and floors should never need to be stripped. Solvent-base products are available in paste or liquids. They can be buffing waxes or self polishing. The buffing must be polished by hand or with an electric polisher. All solvent-base products are recommended for the care of wood and cork floors. As was stated earlier, the solvent-base buffing waxes may also be used on resilient and hard flooring.

Is it necessary to remove water-base self-polishing wax occasionally from

The frequency of wax removal is an individual decision and depends on several factors such as number of coats of polish applied, nature of cleaning between polishing, and the amount of

There are several commercial wax removers to choose from or you can use a solution of 1 cup ammonia, 1/4 cup powdered floor cleaner such as Spic and Span, or Soilax added to each 1/2 gallon cool water. You may be wondering why cool water - the ammonia fumes will not be released as quickly as with hot water. Ammonia tends to evaporate, so it may be necessary to add more to the wax removing solution when ammonia and powdered floor cleaner are used.

Apply the wax remover to a small area of the floor (no more than 3'x3' portion). Let stand a few minutes and rub with stiff brush, steel wool or plastic or nylon scouring pads. Scrubbing with a sponge mop alone will not provide enough abrasion to lift the softened wax. Take up the cleaner and dissolved wax immediately with a cloth or sponge, rinse well, let dry. A second application of cleaner may be necessary to strip the floor completely. The floor will appear uniformly dull when all the wax has been removed. When the tenire floor is stripped, rinse and dry. Then apply a thin coat of your favorite wax.

How does the care of no-wax flooring differ from other types of resilient

Instead of adding a shine with a wax or polish you keep the floor bright by cleaning it often. It is important to protect the surface from unusual abrasion, such as gritty dirt being ground into the surface or furniture being moved across the floor. This means sweeping or vacuuming often. You will want to place a throw rug or mat at outdoor entrances to reduce the amount tracked in. A caution - the use of mats with rubber backing is generally not recommended inside since they can stain the floor. On a regular basis, as needed, the no-wax floor should be thoroughly cleaned to remove any build-up of dirt or film. You may choose one of the synthetic general-purpose detergents recommended for floors, diluted with water as directed on the label. Soap-based products are not recommended since they leave a dulling film. You may choose to apply the detergent solution with a sponge mop, pressing hard enough to get into any indentations in the surface structure. Rinse thoroughly with clean, warm water, being sure not to leave any dirty water in the in-dentations. For stubborn dirt, use a nylon cleaning pad. Steel wool or scouring cleansers are generally not recommended on the no-wax floorings. Will the no-wax flooring ever need

Tests have shown that even these nowax floor benefit from the added protection of a floor polish. Normal foot traffic will reduce the gloss of the surface in time. Floor finishes are available from retailers who sell nowax flooring which can be applied to touch up the shine

Let's protect the flooring from chairs and other furniture. Where chairs or other furniture are being moved continually over the surface, take the precaution of adding floor protectors to the furniture legs. Also exercise caution when moving heavy objects such as a refrigerator or range to avoid damage. Use a scrap of carpet or other slider beneath moved item. This caution applies to all smooth surface flooring not just the no-wax types

WCTU meets

Mrs. Homer Garringer extended the hospitality of her home to the Washington C.H. Woman's Christian Temperance Union Friday afternoon. The meeting was opened with devotions

by Rev. Cloyce Copley.

Mrs. John Case presided at the business session. Reports were made by Mrs. J.G. Jordan and Mrs. Thomas Willis. Mrs. Jordan also read a treasurer report for the County.

Mrs. Case talked about Alcohol-Anonymous, and a possibility that the Federal Government is going to do something about the alcoholic.

Mrs. Eldon Bethard paid tribute to Miss Francis Willard whose birthday comes in February, but due to the inclement weather the local union did not have a meeting that month. Miss Willard was an early organizer of the WCTU. Mrs. Garringer paid personal tribute to the late Mrs. Minnie Smith, a long time member of WCTU, who was very active as long as her health permitted. Mrs. Bethards had on display three large white roses in tribute to these two ladies. Mrs. Bethards closed the Memorial service with the poem by James Whitcomb Riley, "She is not dead, she's just away.

Plans for the meetings for the remainder of 1977 were made, and Miss Marian Christopher will be hostess for the April meeting.

Mrs. Garringer invited all to the dining room for refreshments where the ladies were seated at a long lace covered table and centered with a

What about the maintenance of emossed resilient flooring?

Dirt and wax can accumulate in the embossing and require extra effort to get it out. A suggestion — do not pour cleaner or wax directly on the floor since the excess collects in the embossing. Instead, pour the cleaning solution or wax onto a sponge mop, or dip the mop into the cleaner or wax and wring out the excess.

What about removing stains and marks from resilient flooring?

The procedure you use will depend on the particular flooring you have. Generally, rubber heel marks and most food stains can be removed by rubbing with a cloth or applicator and floor cleaner. Rinse. Let dry and apply new polish. Steel wool or harsh abrasive cleaners are generally not recommended, especially on the no-wax

How to remove chewing gum, candle wax and tar without damaging resilient

It is easiest to remove these materials when they are hard. An ice cube in a plastic bag, placed on the area will hasten setting. Then scrape up excess with a dull-edged tool. Except on floors that are not resistant to solvent, apply a household solvent (mineral spirits or naphtha) with a cloth or very fine steel wool and rub clean. Wipe dry with a clean cloth and repolish the area if necessary

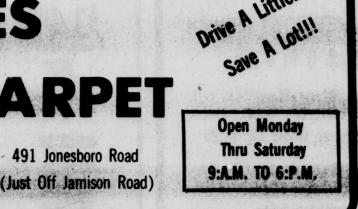

For asphalt and rubber tile floors that are not solvent resistant, clean them by rubbing with very fine steel wool dipped in a detergent solution. Rinse, let dry and apply polish. What can be done with pitted, rough asphalt and rubber tile? This is usually caused by the use of harsh cleaners or solvents. If pitting is not too deep, use steel wool to smooth out the roughened surface. Wash with a mild cleaning solution, then apply a self-polishing, water-base wax. If pitting is severe, try applying several coats of wax to the clean surface. The polish may help fill in the valleys, level the pitted surface and improve the appearance of the rubber or asphalt. Is it okay to seal resilient flooring in the same way that wood and cork are

Sealers such as varnish, lacquer and shellac should not be used on resilient flooring. Rubber tile in particular can be damaged by these types of sealers, resulting in cracked, curled, and dried out flooring

A word of caution - Remember young children will eat or drink almost anything, so keep cleaning products out of reach

EPA survey raps rules

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The Ohio Environmental Protection Agency reports compiling a survey it feels may help prove its case that proposed federal regulations against burning high sulfur Ohio coal are too stringent.

The federal sulfur dioxide emission regulations were proposed for Ohio in the summer of 1976 and testimony in subsequent statewide hearings at-tempted to prove the federal rules too stiff and based upon faulty measurements.

The Ohio EPA has contended that the federal rules were based upon a narrow survey of Ohio points. The state agency claims its survey, which in effect asks coal burners to monitor themselves, will provide better data for formulating the counterproposal the state now is preparing for federal study.

Ohio is the only state without its own federally approved sulfur dioxide emissions standards in effect.

An EPA spokesman also said the survey is an attempt to learn which industries that now use a fuel other than coal would switch to coal if the Ohio variety could legally be burned.

AL East domination in Manhattan

Unless all the oddsmakers are wrong and unless a lot of money has been spent in vain, this year's seven-team race in the American League East won't be a race at all.

It'll be six teams squinting into the distance, looking longingly at the New York Yankees.

During the 1976 season the Yanks returned to their glory days of earlier decades. And after it, they went shopping with a vengeance. And without so much as one regular-season pitch this year, the old Yankee word of "dynasty" is being tossed around.

Behind the Yanks, the Cleveland Indians, Boston Red Sox and Baltimore Orioles figure to skirmish their way through the season for the runner-up spot, perhaps joined by the Detroit

The Milwaukee Brewers are likely candidates to finish sixth this year, just as they did last year. The only saving grace is that sixth is no longer last. The Toronto Blue Jays, with only a couple of recognizable names on their expansion roster, seem certain to trail the rest of the field by more than a few

The Yanks cruised to the divisional title by a healthy 1112 games last year-and they did it without Reggie Jackson, Don Gullett, Paul Blair and Jimmy Wynn.

They did it with Thurman Munson (.302 average, 17 home runs, 105 runs batted in), Mickey Rivers (.312 average, 43 stolen bases), Graig Nettles (league-leading 32 homers, 93 RBI), Chris Chambliss (.293 average, 17 homers, 96 RBI), and pitchers Ed Figueroa (19-10), Dock Ellis (17-8), Catfish Hunter (17-15) and Sparky Lyle (league-leading 23 saves).

Jackson's arrival will probably pump another 30 or so homers and maybe 100 RBI into the Yanks' already awesome attack. Gullett, one of Cincinnati's youner aces, has amassed a 61-26 record the past four years including 11-3 in an injury-hampered 1976 season. With all of this, the presumption was that Manager Billy Martin would spend spring training trying to line up some extra World Series tickets for his

But he's got a problem ... to which a couple of dozen managers are probably muttering, "We should have such problems!'

Martin's quandry is that with Jackson and Rivers and Blair and Wynn and Roy White and Lou Piniella and Oscar Gamble and Ron Blomberg and others, there are well over a dozen

outfielders rumbling around camp looking for a place on the roster.

It would be nice if one or two of those guys played shortstop. It may be the Yanks' only weakness-unless Mickey Klutts comes through. Last year Fred Stanley played the position and, glove-wise, he played it better than anyone else in the league. But he hit a relatively anemic .238.

Klutts, who shared the International League Most Valuable Player honor last year, hit a lusty .319 with 24 homers and 80 RBI at Syracuse. He's got the inside track on a major league starting job this year, once he recovers from a broken hand suffered in spring

The Indians have finished fourth the last three seasons and no better than that since their third-place performance in 1968. On paper, they rate among the division's most improved

With Jim Bibby, Pat Dobson and Dennis Eckersley, they had a respectable starting rotation. It could be a lot more than that with the addition of free-agent Wayne Garland, a 20-game winner with Baltimore last year, and trade-acquired Al Fitzmorris, a 15-game winner at Kansas

Baltimore lost a lot in the free-agent department-Jackson to the Yanks, Garland to the Indians and second

Even if he doesn't, the Indians' power may be replaced with fill Grich's spot. And he's hoping Pat Kelly, formerly of the Chicago White better averages. Free agent Paul Dade Sox, and Elliott Maddox, with the brings a .363 average from the Pacific Yanks a year ago, can strengthen the Coast League and Johnny Grubb comes in from San Diego, where he hit .284. outfield

Beyond Cy Young Award winner Jim Palmer, 22-13 last year, Baltimore's entire pitching corps rates no more than a fat question mark at the moment.

A year ago, Detroit sprung Mark "The Bird" Fidrych on the world. This year the Tigers are hoping another kid will make that kind of splash. He's 20year-old Dave Rozema, 12-4 with a miniscule 1.57 earned run average in the Southern League last year.

Beyond those two and the batting of outfielder Rusty Staub (.299 average, 15 homers, 96 RBI) and Ron LeFlore (.316), Detroit hasn't got much to bank on. If the injury list of last year (LeFlore, Milt May, Aurelio Rodriguez, Dave Roberts, etc.) is Milt shorter, perhaps things will improve.
Sal Bando will give Milwaukee power and leadership. But the Brewers need an awful lot of both—and contributions from a few other newcomers, too-to get marked improvement. Cecil Cooper replaces George Scott

Jim Colborn, gone to Kansas City. Roy Hartsfield, manager of the Blue Jays, will find out whether the rest of league has given him a diamond or two in the rough—or saddled him with hasbeen and never-will-be types. The latter has been the history of expansion. It's likely to be the same this

Will Bill Singer be Toronto's version of Roger Craig? Remember him? Craig compiled a 13-9 composite record in his two final years with Los Angeles, 1960-61. Then he went to the brand-new New York Mets. His composite record in 1962-63 was a terrifying 15-46. Will Singer, 20-25 over the past two years with Texas and Minnesota, go the same route Craig did? Will Steve Hargan or Pete Vuckovich? Will veterans like Phil Roof, John Lowenstein and Jim Mason, all of whom batted around .200 last year, contribute anything or will Toronto count more heavily on kids with names like Garth Iorg, Butch Edge, Jeff Byrd and Jim Clancy?

Unless there are an awful lot of diamonds in that rough, it won't really matter which way the Blue Jays lean to experience or youth. They'll end up falling over.

Panthers explode from season starting blocks

By MARK REA

Record-Herald Sports Editor EBER. Ohio - The Miami Trace tracksters exploded out of the starting blocks last night and ran away from Greenfield McClain to take their first meet win, 81-46.

The Panthers took 13 first places of miles in 10:48.5, lapping nearly

However, those two events are the ones where McClain is the most unstoppable as Randy Seldon ran the 100 in 10 seconds flat while top distance runner Tim Hilterbrand turned two

Coach Bill Beatty of the Panthers was very pleased with his team following the meet. He had high praise for Ralph Fast, Brian Zurface, and Dan Gifford on their afternoon efforts.

"Gifford was jumping into a 30-milea-hour wind over there (in the long jump)," said Beatty. "That shows he could really get some distance without it (the wind)." Gifford took the event with a jump of 18-11/2.

Beatty commented, "I was super pleased with Ralph (Fast) in the shot and discus. He threw 18 feet better than his personal best in the discus into a cross wind. And that's the toughest wind to throw in.

Fast easily took the shot and discus with respective throws of 51-81/2 and

Beatty for a second in the high jump and being on both relay teams. Gifford showed excellent form in the high jump, taking it easily with a jump of 6-2 in the first meet of the year.

Scott Martin scored a first in the pole vault with a jump of 10 feet. Randy Hinkley took second with an identical 10 foot jump. Martin had the least ATLANTA (AP) - For a team that McGuire found something else with which to strangle them.

"I kept my big men around the basket so they wouldn't be able to score anything easy inside," said McGuire. The four-corner offense had been a boon to North Carolina all season, but it turned into a bust this time. Carrying the momentum of the game, the Tar Heels apparently lost what they had at this point. After their gallant rally tied the score 45-45, they slowed down the tempo and eventually lost the handle of the game.

That set the trend for the rest of the Marson Davey, a regular bowler at Bowland Lanes in Washington C.H., and Tom Hatch, a Greenfield Lanes bowler, currently are ranked in fifth place in the doubles division of the prestigious tournament. The tournament continues through September.

Davey rolled a 644 scratch series and Hatch recorded a 628 series. The doubles total was 1,272 scratch, and 1,377 with handicap.

Warriors whip North Carolina

McGuire, Marquette capture NCAA crown

was going nowhere earlier this season, the Marquette Warriors certainly ended up in the right place.

An enigmatic, inconsistent team Marquette reversed its dramatically at the right time and followed its own yellow brick road to the top of the college basketball world.

Al McGuire could not explain it - he could only enjoy it after Monday night's 67-59 victory over North Carolina gave him the national championship in his last game as a college coach.

"I honestly don't know what happened to our team," said McGuire after winning his first NCAA championship. "Maybe they stopped listening to the

McGuire, who is retiring from basketball to go into private business, never thought he would be in the NCAA playoffs this year, much less be wearing the winner's crown. But his team played mistake-proof basketball against North Carolina, giving him the long sought title.

"I think they fell apart in the second half," McGuire said of North Carolina. "We hung in there."

If any of McGuire's 404 victories in his career could be called a "coaching" victory, this one might be it. Even McGuire admitted to playing a determining role in the outcome, something he usually does not do.

When North Carolina made a spectacular rally in the second half, the Marquette coach called timeouts at crucial moments, trying to stop the Tar Heels' momentum.

"Once the avalanche came and we were tied, I tried to stop the avalanche said McGuire. "Usually we try to do it with contact lens timeouts or something like that. You have to stop

State prisons become classrooms

AKRON, Ohio (AP) - Ohio's state prisons have have become classrooms for University of Akron law students, and inmates are benefitting as well.

The students are participating in an inmate assistance program, helping prisoners at six-state reformatories with legal problems, while gaining practical experience in interviewing and use of the law themselves.

The program, operating on a small grant from the National Student Bar Association, which last year named it the best of its kind in the country, provides inmates unable to afford lawyers a much-appreciated service. Jody R., is one of those at Ohio

Women's Reformatory in Marysville, who is using the program. "The main thing I want to talk to you about is whether I can get my two-year sentence modified," she told law student Ron Smith. "I'm here on a drug charge. I know the law has been changed but nobody ever pulled my prison record to revise it.

Smith assured her he's check on her case and send her a letter of his findings.

"There is no resident attorney at Marsyville," said Shirley Cool, a second year night law student and student director of the inmate assistance program. "They have a fair library, but because of security can rarely use it."

The students visit Marysville the only prison for female felons in Ohio, once a month. They go to the reformatory at Mansfield twice a month and the other state prisons at Lucasville, Chillicothe, Marion and London at least once a

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Starting April 12, the comic legacy the late Ernie Kovacs left on videotape and kinescope returns to TV — public TV — in 10 weekly shows called "The Best of Ernie Kovacs." And Oscar-winning actor Jack Lemmon, a Kovacs friend ever since they met while making "Operation Mad Ball" in 1957, is hosting the shows, serving as a guide to the man and his off-beat humor.

He was asked what sort of guy was Kovacs, creator of such memorables as the Nairobi Trio, Miklos Molnar the noted cook and poet Percy Dovetonsils for commercial TV in the 1950s and early 1960s.

'Well, he was crazy, first of all," Lemmon laughed. "But his craziness and brilliance were what made him so unique. And the wild, imaginative things only he came up with really were innovations in TV.

"And people tend to forget he was a technical wizard in the use of the camera, the same way Buster Keaton was way back in the silent era. People think of Keaton as a comic.

"But they don't realize he also was one of the great, innovative film makers. Well, Ernie was that way in the early days of television."

Kovacs died at age 43 in an auto accident here in 1962. The Public Broadcasting Service shows featuring his work were compiled and edited by station WTTW in Chicago. Each show is a half-hour in length.

"I never spent 30 seconds with Ernie

that were dull, and I don't think anybody who knew him did, either," Lemmon recalled.

An example: He said one night Kovacs invited him and the lady Lemmon later married, Felicia Farr, out to dinner with his wife, actresssinger Edie Adams. Later, they sat around listening to music in a partly finished study Kovacs was building near his house.

Kovacs wouldn't let them leave, Lemon said. Finally, at 3:30 a.m. he insisted his guests stay overnight in the study, sleep in front of the warm fireplace, and got them a huge bearskin

"He neglected to say workmen were coming at 8 a.m.," the actor said. "So dawn comes, there we are under the rug, and I hear this incredible hammering going on. A guy on a ladder looks down at me.

"He obviously knows who I am, says, 'Good morrrrrning," a big smile. Same with another guy putting in sliding doors. I felt embarrassed as hell... Lemmon started chuckling. "Now, I damn well know he knew these guys were coming in at 8 a.m. or he wouldn't have insisted for 1½ hours that we had to stay there.'

But despite Kovacs' legendary zaniness, he said, "he also was a terribly decent man. And that's hard to do when you have a career like his, work for so many people on so many different craft levels

"Sooner or later — we're all human you can get mad, do this, do that. But Ernie never hurt a bug, that I know of. He seemed to have no foibles, only greatness.

U.S. trade deficit caused by oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's appetite for imported oil helped push the U.S. trade balance into deficit by a record margin in February, the government reported today. It marked the third time in the last four months that the size of the deficit has set a record. The Commerce Department said that over-all, imports were $1.866 billion larger than exports in February after adjustment for seasonal variations. That compared to the previous record deficit of $1.67 billion in January. The trade deficit also had set a record of $1.034 billion in November.

The nation's trade balance has not run a surplus since it was $380 million in the black last May. Administration analysts had expected the balance to run a little more into deficit this year than the $5.87 billion last year. But the deficit in just the first two months of this year now stands at $3.54 billion. Administration analysts had theorized that trade deficits the size of last year's are beneficial for the world economy because they help U.S. trading partners establish stronger economies and thus increase their demand for U.S. goods. But a sizeable deficit in the U.S. trade accounts mean much of U.S. purcha flowing abroad rather than creating new jobs and demand at home.

Commerce said oil imports were a crucial factor in the February trade performance. The volume of total oil imports was off 10.9 per cent to 238.9 million barrels. But since imports usually drop more steeply than that in February, adjustment for seasonal variations translated the value of oil imports into a 5.6 per cent increase.

Fear of General Anesthesia

was told that I need a relatively simple operation. I have no fear of the surgery or the pain af-terwards. My terror is about being put to sleep and not waking up. - Mrs. R.F., Nev. fear. Dear Mrs. F.:

anesthesia occurs frequently. As you say, the fear of this prospect is often greater than the fear of pain or the surgery itself. People of all cultural, intellectual and economic levels have expressed such anxiety.

"Will the doctor know that I am completely asleep?" "Will I wake up too soon?" "Will I die under anesthesia?" These are only a few of the many fears of patients who express or, even worse, do NOT express their inner fears.

In order to allay such anxiety, you should know that the modern anesthesiologist visits his patients one or more times before surgery, and psychologically prepares them for the experience. It is now accepted that the psychological preparation of all patients is almost as important as other pre-operative studies.

The emotional state of the patient distinctly influences the smoothness of recovery.

Let me assure you that the safety of modern anesthesia

I am absolutely petrified. I and the advances made in this important speciality are enormous. It is important that you do not put off the surgery that has been suggested because of your overwhelming

If you reveal your fears to Apprehension about general your doctor, he and the surgeon might arrange to do the procedure under local anesthesia and thus spare you your inordinate fears. In some instances this is possible.

> My friends think that it's ridiculous for me, at the age of 56, to consider plastic surgery for my face and neck. How do you feel about this? - Mr. H.V.,

Dear Mr. V.:

Many men are having the socalled "face lift" when they feel that their appearance needs to be supported by a youthful look.

A good image of one's self is no longer limited to men and women in the entertainment business. Today, more and more people give themselves that extra emotional "lift" by the procedure of a facial "lift."

Your friends are sincere and kind, but can be confusing in a decision that must be yours and yours alone.

If you look at all four hands it seems impossible to make four spades. Declarer must obviously lose two club tricks and one heart trick, and there appears to ue no way to avoid losing a diamond also.

This is because, if South draws three rounds of trumps, he can ruff only one diamond in dummy; if he draws only two rounds of trumps and attempts to ruff two diamonds in dummy, West scores his jack of trumps on the fourth round of diatrumps and led a diamond to dummy's ace, producing this position: North 10 ♥863

Council to consider rezoning ordinance

A 1.2-acre tract of land near the intersection of John and Elm streets will be the site of three apartment buildings if the Washington C.H. City Council follows the recommendations of the city planning commission.

The city planning commission has recommended the rezoning of the land from R-2 (two-family residences) and M-1 (light manufacturing and warehouse) to R-3 (multi-family

According to city inspector Glenn Tatman, three lots, each with an 80-foot frontage on Elm Street, will be created if the zoning change is approved by City Council. Each of the lots will be 280 feet deep. The land is located across from St. Colman's Catholic Cemetery just south of John Street.

On each lot, a three-family and a twofamily dwelling will be erected. The three-family section will face Elm Street and the two-family section will face the rear of the lot, according to

The tract of land on which the three lots are situated is owned by Donald Hawk, 615 Washington Ave., who is a missionary in Central America during most of the year.

Presently, there are two houses on the tract of land and Hawk plans to dismantle those structures to form the three lots. The two houses marked for removal are located between two other houses on Elm Street. These two houses are not owned by Hawk and they will presumably be left standing.

City Council will hold a public hearing at its regular scheduled meeting on April 27 at the Carnegie Public Library regarding the adoption of a zoning change ordinance.

Interested persons may attend the hearing and voice their opinions on the proposed zoning change. The proposed amendment to the city's zoning ordinance, including texts and maps, may be examined at the clerk's office in the city office building.

Stray bullet eyed in glass breakage

A stray bullet is believed to have been the cause of a destruction of property incident reported to the Fayette County Sheriff's Department Saturday morning.

Joseph E. Williams, of Frankfort, told sheriff's deputies that he was driving a truck rented from the Phillips Trucking, Inc., 176 Oakland Ave., when his windshield suddenly shattered. He reported that there were no other vehicles in sight at the time of the incident on U.S. 35, about five miles north west of the Washington C. H. city

The windshield was completely shattered and the incident is believed to be an accident. No bullet was found.

Tuesday, March 29, 1977 Columbia Gas meets demands

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The board chairman of Columbia Gas System, Inc., has met still another demand from Gov. James A. Rhodes by detailing the company's plans for developing land it leases in Ohio.

B.J. Clarke also told the governor

Monday that the system should have a "somewhat greater" natural gas supply available for next winter. Clarke's prediction and details of development plans were in response to request Rhodes made during a meeting between the two March 21. During the session, Rhodes extracted a promise from Clarke that the natural gas conglomerate will carry Ohio-produced gas in its federally regulated pipelines contrary to tradition and the normal reading of Federal Power Commission regulations.

Rhodes was not satisfied with that promise alone and demanded an accounting of Columbia's plans for 584,000 acres leased for gas production within

Clarke explained in his report to the governor that Columbia's purchase of "substantial amounts of emergency gas" and storage facilities expected to be "fully packed" by Nov. 1, 1977, should give Ohio more natural gas next winter than the past one. Clarke's latest report to Rhodes details the use 391,000 of those acres, claiming that drilling is underway on 79,000 acres, complete on 150,000 acres, under a working agreement on 59,000 acres, and under exploration on 103,000. The remaining acres, Clarke reported, are pending farm-out or subcontracting, reserved for shale development, or being abandoned.

The company has been criticized by some for failing to develop more storage fields in Ohio. Clarke has taken the stance that storage capacity increases mean little without additional supplies to fill that capacity.

His Monday report to Rhodes indicated that nearly 46 per cent of the system's total storage is located in Ohio where 49 per cent of deliveries are made. Clarke said the investment in Ohio storage amounts to $125 million.

Clarke's letter ended with a reminder to Rhodes that the promise to carry Ohio-produced gas in the interstate system still depends upon FPC ap-"During our meeting on March 21, we mutually recognized that Columbia could not 'take any action that violates any of its legal duties to the Federal Commission."

Rhodes had asked Columbia to carry unregulated Ohio gas through its federally regulated pipelines, citing an FPC decision in a Colorado case.

FPC spokesmen said the Colorado decision was not identical to the Ohio case because the pipelines in question in Ohio do not terminate in this state as they do in Colorado.

The price of gas that flows in the interstate system is regulated by the FPC and now brings about $1.44 per 1,000 cubic feet. Unregulated gas that is drilled and distributed within the same state is selling for $2 to $2.25.

Kiwanians tour Mexico

The Washington C.H. Kiwanis Club was treated to a guided tour of Mexico Monday night at its regular weekly dinner meeting in the Terrace Lounge. Club member Larry Lloyd, who recently returned from Mexico, provided the program with color slides. Lloyd is an engineer with the Proctor and Gamble Co., Cincinnati, and was temporarily assigned to Mexico to assist in the construction of the company's newest plant in the capital city of the country.

Lloyd said that Mexico City is the oldest continuously inhabitied city and capital in North America. The city was originally a shallow lake with several

He said the climate around Mexico City is mild with a temperature range of 30 to 85 degrees.

Pyramids in the area are different from any others in the world, he said. The pyramids are believed to be some of the oldest in the world and were constructed by early civilizations. The early civilizations were well established and highly cultured with achievements of developed religion and languages only surpassed by the later

Lloyd also presented slides and answered questions about several other well-known cities such as San Luis, Guadalupe, Acapulco and Taxco.

Guests attending the meeting were John Rich with George Gibbs, Russell Depugh with Norman Armbrust, James Oughterson with Ron Lott and M.B. Cusbin of the Columbus Kiwanis Club.

Charter members Robert Parrett and Louie Kuhlwein received pins for 18 years of continuous service.

Michael Campbell, general chairman of the Kiwanis Club's annual teen talent show, said auditions for the event will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday in Persinger Hall of the First Presbyterian Church.

More snow for west

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Blizzard warnings, winter storm warnings, and travel advisories covered most of the Dakotas, northern Wyoming and much of Montana today, with four or more inches of snow likely in the mountains of New Mexico.

Gale warnings were posted across the upper Great Lakes this morning. Travel advisories were posted over the mountains and deserts of southern California where motorists were warned that gusty winds would blow dust and snow

There were thunderstorms in the lower Great Lakes area. Rainshowers extended across the Northeast and there were showers and thunderstorms over the Southeast.
